Integrated learning and assessment solutions for schools

Welcome to Cambridge

World-class English teaching, learning and assessment solutions created for you.

English is a language that opens up opportunities around the world. We exist to make learning English an inspiring, rewarding experience. We are part of a university with a global reputation for excellence, and many of us have been English teachers and learners.

Working with schools and teachers, we help millions of learners succeed throughout their English language learning journey from pre-school to university and beyond. Measured against the internationally recognised CEFR, our integrated approach helps educators place learners correctly, improve their English, prepare them for exams and prove their skills to the world.

A world shaped by research and insights

We have dedicated, in-house research teams specialising in language learning, assessment and educational research for English. They develop innovative tools, frameworks and resources which help us to better understand and support teaching, learning and assessment.

Our expertise underpins a learner's whole journey. This includes their first experiences of learning English, through to gaining a certificate in language proficiency.

Getting the most from every moment of learning

Every single moment spent with a language learner is important. That's why we integrate learning and assessment, to help teachers measure, guide and support progress.

Learning takes place at different rates for different individuals. This can make it difficult for teachers to know how learning is progressing and where to focus. An approach is needed, therefore, that focuses not only on teaching and learning, but also on assessment. Assessment in this case doesn't simply mean tests, but any activity that provides information about student or whole class learning.

By assessing where learners are a teacher can provide evidence of progress and actionable feedback to motivate learners and show them what they need to do next to achieve their goals.

The integral role of assessment in language teaching and learning

Assessment is integral to language learning and carries a range of different purposes. Exams and tests enable learners to prove their skills to the world, but assessment also helps shape programmes of learning and guide the decisions that need to be made to help learners improve.

Using assessment to inform teaching has a significant impact on the effectiveness of learning, and on student motivation.

Assessment should not be seen as separate to learning, therefore, or as something that just takes place at the end of a course of learning. Ongoing assessment throughout the learning journey helps teachers to identify individual and collective learning gaps, enabling them to plan lessons that are more targeted and responsive to student needs.

Integrating learning and assessment to improve outcomes

Integrated learning and assessment (ILA) is the combination of teaching, learning and assessment methods to plan, measure and improve outcomes. Backed by our research, we believe that providing evidence of progress and actionable feedback is the best way to help learners succeed.

These are two of the four ‘pillars’ that underpin learner success and are at the heart of successfully integrating learning and assessment in the classroom. They are supported by having clear learning objectives and tailored follow-up activities planned by teachers.

Action is also required at an institutional level. Learning potential is not fully realised if curriculum, learning objectives, teaching materials, classroom practices and assessment tools are not aligned to the same end goals. You can find out more about how ILA works by reviewing our paper ‘Getting the most out of every moment of learning: The power of integrating learning and assessment’.

You'll find this and a related guide to help teachers implement ILA approaches at

Cambridge English Skills Test

Schools

Flexible, reliable assessment for the decisions you need to make

The Cambridge English Skills Test for Schools is a flexible, online test of all four language skills (listening, speaking, reading and writing) that can be used for placement as well as for other purposes, such as end of year or mid-term assessment. The test is suitable for learners aged 12-16 and has an adaptive design, making it ideal for testing mixed-ability groups.

Fast, accurate results provide schools with a clear assessment of individual and collective levels of English proficiency. Individual and class performance reports support teachers in making quick, confident decisions about their learners, where external certification is not required.
