A guide to the In-service Certificate in English Language Teaching (ICELT)

Introduction

WHAT IS ICELT?
The In-service Certificate in English Language Teaching (ICELT) is a highly practical course-based qualification which provides in-service teacher training and development for practising English language teachers. Teachers must attend an approved course during which they produce a number of written assignments and are observed and assessed teaching in their usual context. The coursework and teaching are internally assessed and externally moderated. There is no written examination.

The following information relates to centres offering the full ICELT programme. Modular options are described below.

TARGET CANDIDATURE
ICELT is for practising teachers. ICELT candidates are likely to have very different levels of previous teaching experience. Some may have substantial previous English language teaching experience but little practical training; others may have been trained as primary/secondary teachers and now need to extend their skills to include language teaching.

Teachers need to have had 500 hours’ relevant experience by the end of the course. Many ICELT candidates will have had considerably more experience than this. All candidates need to be teaching while taking the course. Course programmes are designed to help teachers develop in the context within which they are currently working – whether that context is teaching young learners or English for academic purposes or a range of ELT classes in different institutions.

The minimum language level entry requirement is Council of Europe Level B2.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS
Applicants should:
• be at least 18 years of age on entry to the course
• be practising teachers who will have had a total of at least 500 hours of relevant experience by the end of the course
• have a competence in written and spoken English which is sufficient for them to participate effectively in the course and to meet the assessment requirements.

ADVICE ON SCREENING PROCEDURES
Where teachers do not have nationally recognised qualified teacher status, and will be working with primary or secondary learners, it is the responsibility of individual centres to ensure that all applicants for courses which include the primary and secondary age-range are screened before entry onto the course for their suitability for working with young people.

ICELT AIMS
ICELT programmes are designed to enable candidates to:
• extend their knowledge and awareness of those aspects of language which are relevant to their professional practice
• extend their understanding of the context in which their learners are learning English, and of the principles underlying language learning and teaching
• extend their familiarity with resources and materials for English language teaching and develop their ability to use, evaluate and, where appropriate, adapt or create classroom materials
• consolidate and refine their planning and their practical classroom skills
• identify learner needs, monitor and evaluate learner progress and develop awareness of different means of assessment
• identify needs and opportunities to further their development as professionals
• extend their knowledge and understanding of language required for their professional role, and improve their ability to use English both generally and for classroom purposes.
SYLLABUS CONTENT
The syllabus includes coverage of seven units:

- Language Knowledge and Awareness
- The Background to Teaching and Learning English
- Resources and Materials
- Planning and Management of Teaching and Learning
- Evaluation, Monitoring and Assessment
- Professional Development
- Language for Teachers

ASSESSMENT
There are three components of Assessment:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>COMPONENT ONE: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS</th>
<th>COMPONENT TWO: TEACHING</th>
<th>COMPONENT THREE: METHODOLOGY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Candidates complete four tasks designed to improve their use of English for teaching purposes. The teacher’s language is also assessed as part of the other two components.</td>
<td>Candidates are assessed on four occasions.</td>
<td>Candidates complete four classroom-related written assignments.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

INTERNAL ASSESSMENT
Coursework is assessed by ICELT course tutors.

EXTERNAL MODERATION
The course is moderated by an external moderator who samples candidates’ teaching and written assignments. Samples of coursework are submitted to Cambridge English at the end of the course for further moderation.

GRADES OF AWARD
Candidates are awarded an overall grade of Pass, Merit or Distinction, as well as component grades of Pass, Merit or Distinction.

PROGRAMME REQUIREMENTS
Programmes are designed by individual centres using the syllabus and course objectives.

ICELT course programmes may focus on teaching adult learners, learners in primary schools or learners in secondary schools. A programme will normally focus on one specific teaching context.

The following requirements are an integral part of the programme:

- A specified number of contact hours
  - Face-to-face option
    A minimum of 120 contact hours between the candidate(s) and the course tutor(s) including input, tutorial support and feedback.
  - Face-to-face with distance learning support programme
    A minimum of 50 contact hours with an additional distance learning programme which has been approved by Cambridge English (total 120 hours).
- Four language tasks which focus on developing the teacher’s language skills in the classroom context detailed on pages 19–26. (Tasks 5 and 6, pages 27–30, are additional tasks for candidates who have entered for the language component as a stand-alone option (see page 5).
- Four lessons supervised and assessed by a course tutor. Candidates can be assessed teaching two (but not more than two) age ranges or levels, but can also be assessed at one age group/level only, if this is the context of their current teaching.
• Four classroom-related assignments detailed on pages 32–36.
• Between 150 and 300 hours’ reading, research, lesson and assignment preparation.
• Directed observation of eight lessons, two of which may be of videoed lessons. These observations may be of peers and/or other experienced teachers. Observations should be relevant to the candidate’s working context.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate, in their assessed teaching practice and related written assignments, a competence in the use of written and spoken English which is sufficient to enable them to meet the assessment requirements of this course.

Modular options
ICELT has been divided into two modules:
Language for Teachers Module (Component One)
Teaching and Methodology (Components Two and Three)

Module One: Language for Teachers Module
Teachers may choose to take the Language for Teachers Module as a stand-alone course. On successful completion they will be awarded an ICELT Language for Teachers Module Certificate.

Teachers may then, if they wish, progress to the Teaching and Methodology module and on successful completion will receive an ICELT certificate for all three components.

TARGET CANDIDATURE FOR MODULE ONE: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS
This module is appropriate for participants with a range of needs. It is suitable for:

• institutional development and training needs for in-service English language teachers and can serve as:
  – preparation for further training or participation in project development
  – a benchmark for internal promotion systems.

It is also suitable for:

• experienced teachers of other subjects who wish to develop their professional English for English-medium teaching of their subject
• teachers who may be returning to language teaching after a period of time and who wish to review and develop their English language skills
• teachers of other second or foreign languages who wish to include ELT as part of their career development.

Teachers will normally have at least 100 hours’ teaching experience and must be able to demonstrate language proficiency to a level at which the centre can confidently expect them to cope with the demands of the module.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS
Applicants should:

• be at least 18 years of age on entry to the course
• be practising teachers who will have had a total of at least 100 hours of relevant experience at the beginning of the course
• have a competence in written and spoken English which is sufficient for them to participate effectively in the course and to meet the assessment requirements.

AIMS OF LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS MODULE
The Language for Teachers Module as a stand-alone qualification seeks to develop professional language and communication skills in English. It provides preparation in the specialised knowledge and use of English that is relevant to an effective classroom practitioner. Specifically, the module aims to:

• develop insight into and awareness of language form and function in classroom and learner discourse
• develop flexible, accurate and appropriate writing skills for communicating clearly with learners, colleagues and other professionals
• develop flexible, accurate and appropriate speaking skills for communicating in the classroom as well as with colleagues and other professionals
• enable participants to develop their capacity to know how to evaluate their language skills for continuing development.

CONTENT AND OBJECTIVES FOR LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS MODULE
The syllabus content and objectives for this component are detailed on page 14 of this document. In addition, courses for candidates taking this component only will also include the following content and objectives from units 1–6 (which are detailed on pages 8–13):

1.1 Concepts and terminology used in English language teaching for describing form and meaning in language and language use
1.2 Language used by teachers and learners
1.3 Language selected for teaching programmes
1.4 Reference materials for language awareness
2.3 Learner development and motivation
3.2 Evaluating and selecting resources and materials
3.3 Using, supplementing, adapting and creating materials
3.4 Effective use of teaching aids, technical support and self-access materials
4.3 Teacher and learner language
5.1 Identifying learner needs
5.2 Monitoring learners’ progress and giving feedback
6.1 Evaluating teaching and learning
6.2 Working with people

PROGRAMME REQUIREMENTS
Programmes are designed by ICELT centres using the syllabus and course objectives.
The following requirements are an integral part of the programme:

• A specified number of contact hours
  - Face-to-face option
    Between 40–60 contact hours between the candidate(s) and the course tutor(s) including input, tutorial support, feedback. Programmes offering less than 60 contact hours would be appropriate where the candidates have previous experience/training which can be recognised.
  - Face-to-face with distance learning support programme
    A minimum of 20 contact hours with an additional distance learning programme which has been approved by Cambridge English (total hours between 40–60). Programmes offering fewer than 60 hours would be appropriate where the candidates have previous training which can be recognised.

• Six language tasks which focus on developing the teacher’s professional language skills (see pages 18–30).

ASSESSMENT

Internal assessment
Teachers complete six tasks which are internally assessed by the course tutors (see pages 19–30).

External moderation
Portfolios are submitted to Cambridge English for moderation.
Module Two: Teaching and Methodology Module

PROGRAMME REQUIREMENTS

Programmes are designed by individual centres using the syllabus and course objectives.

ICELT Module Two course programmes may focus on teaching adult learners, learners in primary schools or learners in secondary schools. A programme will normally focus on one specific teaching context.

The following requirements are an integral part of the programme:

• A specified number of contact hours
  - Face-to-face option
    A minimum of between 90–110 contact hours between the candidate(s) and the course tutor(s) including input, tutorial support and feedback. Programmes offering fewer than 110 contact hours would be appropriate where the candidates have previous experience/training which can be recognised.
  - Face-to-face with distance learning support programme
    A minimum of 40 contact hours with an additional distance learning programme which has been approved by Cambridge English (total hours between 90–110). Programmes offering fewer than 110 hours would be appropriate where the candidates have previous training which can be recognised.

• Four lessons supervised and assessed by a course tutor. Candidates can be assessed teaching two (but not more than two) age ranges or levels, but can also be assessed teaching one age group/level only, if this is the context of their current teaching.

• Four classroom-related assignments detailed on pages 29–33.

• Between 100 and 200 hours’ reading, research, lesson and assignment preparation.

• Directed observation of eight lessons, two of which may be of videoed lessons. These observations may be of peers and/or other experienced teachers. Observations should be relevant to the candidate’s working context.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate, in their assessed teaching practice and written assignments, a competence in the use of written and spoken English which is sufficient to enable them to meet the assessment requirements of this course.

For target candidature and aims and content of the course, see information above.

- write clear instructions for classroom tasks
- write on the board, produce accurate handouts, posters, etc.
- evaluate, correct and comment on learners’ written work
- write reports on learners’ progress |
Overview of assessment

1 COMPONENTS, PORTFOLIOS, ASSESSMENT AND AWARDS

1.1 The assessment components

1.1.1 Component One: Language for Teachers
For this component, candidates are required to complete four language tasks. (Candidates taking the Language Module only complete two additional language tasks – Tasks 5 and 6.)

The centre decides the order and timing of each task.

1.1.2 Component Two: Teaching
In this component, candidates are required to plan, teach and evaluate four lessons which are assessed by a tutor. All four lessons must be with classes of a size which is considered normal in local conditions. Candidates can be assessed teaching two (but not more than two) age ranges or levels or they can be assessed teaching one age group/level only, if this is the context of their current teaching. Each lesson should have a different language/skills focus as a main/subsidiary aim. By the end of the four lessons, successful candidates should have demonstrated achievement of all the teaching assessment criteria. Tutors will assess the candidate at the end of each of the four lessons, awarding each lesson a grade; an overall grade will be given at the end of the series of four lessons. Specifications for the assessment of teaching can be found on page 31.

Wherever possible, the four lessons should not be assessed by the same tutor. Candidates should be assessed on at least one occasion by a second tutor. The lessons should be assessed at intervals which allow progression and development.

1.1.3 Component Three: Methodology
Candidates are required to write four classroom-related assignments. These are described on pages 32–36.

The centre decides the order and timing of each teaching assignment. 50% of the submissions for each assignment should be double marked.

1.2 Coursework portfolios
Candidates must maintain and submit a portfolio of all coursework including:

- lesson plans, materials, post-lesson evaluations and tutor feedback (ICELT 3) for all assessed lessons
- written assignments and tutor feedback
- language tasks and tutor feedback
- completed observation tasks relating to eight observed lessons.

This portfolio is submitted to the course tutor at the end of the course. A sample of coursework, representing a range of ability, is submitted to Cambridge English for moderation at the end of the course. Additional portfolios may be requested.

1.3 Mode of assessment
Assessment is undertaken by the course tutors.

Each course is externally moderated. Moderators will check the coursework of each candidate and scrutinise the work of a selection of candidates in detail.

The moderator will jointly assess at least three lessons, each of which will be taught by a different candidate.

The assessment is continuous and integrated.

continuous here means that:

- assessment takes place throughout the course
Overview of Assessment

Integrated here means that
  - each assessed component contributes to the overall grade
  - any one assessed component can cover a number of objectives from different syllabus units.

1.4 Grades of award

1.4.1 ICELT Pass requirements

To gain the ICELT certificate, candidates must complete and pass all three components.

COMPONENT ONE: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS
Candidates must gain a Pass in all four tasks.

COMPONENT TWO: TEACHING
Candidates must gain a Pass in at least three of the four assessed lessons. The lesson which does not pass cannot be the final lesson.

COMPONENT THREE: METHODOLOGY
Candidates must gain a Pass in all four assignments.

1.4.2 ICELT Merit requirements

To gain an overall Merit, candidates must achieve a Merit in two components, one of which must be the Teaching component, and a Pass in the third component.

COMPONENT ONE: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS
To gain a Merit in Component One, candidates must achieve a Merit in at least two of the four tasks and a Pass in the other two.

COMPONENT TWO: TEACHING
To gain a Merit in Component Two, candidates must achieve a Merit in at least two of the four assessed lessons, including one of the final two, and a Pass in the other two.

COMPONENT THREE: METHODOLOGY
To gain a Merit in Component Three, candidates must achieve a Merit in at least two of the four assignments and a Pass in the other two.

1.4.3 ICELT Distinction requirements

To gain an overall Distinction, candidates must achieve a Distinction in at least two out of the three components, one of which must be Teaching, and a Merit in the third.

COMPONENT ONE: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS
To gain a Distinction in Component One, candidates must achieve a Distinction in at least two of the four tasks and at least a Pass in the other two.

COMPONENT TWO: TEACHING
To gain a Distinction in Component Two, candidates must achieve a Distinction in at least two of the four assessed lessons, including one of the final two, and at least a Pass in the other two.

COMPONENT THREE: METHODOLOGY
To gain a Distinction in Component Three, candidates must achieve a Distinction in at least two of the four assignments and at least a Pass in the other two.
1.4.4 The Award Process

The moderator’s report, coursework records and a sample of coursework are submitted to Cambridge English for consideration by the ICELT Chief Moderators who make the final decisions regarding award of grades.

Candidates who have clearly not met the Pass requirements in one or more components cannot be considered for the award of an ICELT certificate. Candidates who have narrowly missed the Pass requirements in one component may be referred at the Chief Moderator’s discretion and given an opportunity to submit the narrowly failed piece of work.

2 ASSESSMENT: LANGUAGE FOR TEACHERS - MODULAR OPTION

Candidates entered for Module One as a stand-alone module are required to complete six language tasks. Candidates must complete a portfolio containing all completed tasks and tutor feedback.

2.1 Mode of assessment

Assessment is undertaken by the tutors. Portfolios are submitted to Cambridge English for chief moderation.

2.2 Grades of award

• To gain a Pass, candidates must achieve a Pass in all six tasks.
• To gain a Merit, candidates must achieve a Merit in at least three of the six tasks and at least a Pass in the other three.
• To gain a Distinction, candidates must achieve a Distinction in at least three of the six tasks and at least a Pass in the other three.
Component One: Language for teachers – Task specifications

The six Language for Teachers tasks are outlined on pages 19–30. Guidelines for each task are addressed to the candidate. Notes for tutors are provided after each task description.

Specific assessment criteria are included for each task. Reference should also be made to the relevant General Mark Schemes on pages 37–38.

Although the task-specific criteria must be met, the tasks are graded on the candidate’s ability to use language effectively as described on pages 37–38. The criteria on pages 37–38 should be referred to when considering a Merit or Distinction grade for any of the Language for Teachers tasks or for an overall Merit or Distinction.

Select a reading source that you feel is interesting and useful to other course members. The reading text can be taken from a practical teaching magazine, an extract from a book or an academic journal (e.g. ELT journal), or an internet source. The source text or extract should not be longer than 1,000–1,500 words and must have professional relevance.&lt;br&gt;2. Produce a summary in note form of the main ideas or argumentation of a professional or academic text. You may use diagrams or tables to summarise the main ideas in the article or extract you have chosen. You may include one or two short quotations from the reading source in your presentation. Make sure you can explain or exemplify any technical terms or concepts in the article/extract.&lt;br&gt;3. Prepare two questions on your selected text which will be useful to stimulate discussion of key aspects of the text with your peer group.&lt;br&gt;4. Give an oral presentation of your selected source to your peer group using your notes from stage 2 above. Try to introduce and contextualise the topic presented. The aim of the presentation is to facilitate your audience’s understanding of the main points/issues and to use accurate oral language, as well as pronunciation and prosodic features (stress, juncture and intonation) to good effect.&lt;br&gt;5. After your oral presentation of the reading source, use your discussion questions (stage 3) to initiate a brief discussion of the points selected.</td>

NOTES TO CENTRES

Centres will naturally develop different ways of preparing and managing this assessment task. However, the following pointers may be useful:

a. Feedback from centres and course tutors indicates that it is quite common practice to use techniques such as jigsaw reading, or group presentations of reading sources in order to gain more coverage of course input, to promote a learner-centred approach, and to foster genuine assimilation and discussion of ideas. In this way, this assessment task should not be too disruptive of the normal learning and teaching processes incorporated on many teacher training courses.

b. Course tutors might like to introduce the idea of providing an oral summary of a reading source early on in the programme in order to familiarise candidates with speaking to the rest of the training group, and lessen anxiety when it comes to presenting for the assignment. Asking groups, then pairs, then individuals to take responsibility for presenting a short reading source could also be a supportive way of leading up to this task as well as providing relevant formative assessment.

c. While it is important that each candidate selects his or her own source as a basis for the oral presentation, the tutor may wish to group topics and presenters so that the themes and issues raised have some kind of linkage or coherence.

d. Where possible, presentations might be topically linked to and follow on from tutor-led input.

e. Depending on the size of the training group, tutors may wish to stagger the presentations over a number of meetings rather than try to assess all candidates at one sitting.

f. Although this is an integrated task with preparatory stages, the focus of the assessment is on the candidate’s spoken language competence only. Thus, while good reading skills and effective note-taking are important stages in preparing for the presentation, these skills are not assessed in this task. It is not necessary for course tutors to provide, for example, a course in note-taking skills to support this assignment. The assignment requirement to take notes from the reading source is to dissuade candidates from reading the source text aloud verbatim, as well as to prompt them to consider ways of reorganising written information for an oral presentation. The candidate’s notes and a copy of the reading source, should however, be submitted in the candidate’s file.

g. Similarly, the assignment does not assess techniques for making presentations. While effective use, for example, of an overhead transparency or other aids should not be discouraged, and indeed may help the presenter to structure their ideas and feel more confident, these competencies are not assessed in this assignment.

h. To preserve the validity of the assessment task, the discussion questions should be followed by a brief group discussion so that the candidate can get feedback on their questions, and other candidates can benefit in an active way from the presentation. Tutors may choose to allow the discussion to continue as appropriate.

i. Course tutors should ensure that candidates are not allowed to overrun the maximum allowable time of 10 minutes.
Task 2: Focus on the learner’s spoken language

FORMAT
Length: 750-1,000 words

Task outline
You are required to observe a lesson taught by a colleague and to give your judgement on the English language ability of the class as a whole. You should present evidence for your judgement in the form of samples of the spoken language used by a range of learners. A minimum of 10 samples should be presented, including accurate and inaccurate, appropriate and inappropriate language. The samples should show various aspects of language, (e.g. grammar, pronunciation, vocabulary, function, discourse, style). Finally you should say briefly what aspects of language development the class needs to focus on.

Guidelines
1. Observe a lesson.
2. Give a brief description of the learners (e.g. age, level of English, etc.) and of the lesson (e.g. topic, objectives).
3. Select a minimum of 10 examples of spoken language used by the learners and the contexts in which they were used (e.g. the topic the learner was talking about, a teacher question to which the learner was responding).
4. Comment briefly on what each sample shows about the learner’s progress in spoken English (e.g. what the learner has already learned, is in the process of learning, has not yet learned).
5. Comment briefly on the aspects of language development which the class as a whole needs to focus on.

SYLLABUS FOCUS

| 1. | Concepts and terminology used in English language teaching for describing form and meaning in language and language use |
| 2. | Language used by teachers and learners |
| 3. | Learner development and motivation |
| 4. | Monitoring learners’ progress and giving feedback |
| 5. | Using spoken English in the classroom |

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA
Tutors should mark all written assignments using the General Mark Scheme for the assessment of written language for Component One on page 37.

The following task-specific criteria focus on particular considerations relevant to this task. These specific requirements are noted, where relevant, under the same general headings (‘Language Accuracy and Language Awareness’, ‘Range and Flexibility’, ‘Organisation and Content’, ‘Audience Awareness’) in order to guide task-specific assessment.

Pass level tasks will show that the candidate can:

Language Accuracy and Language Awareness

2a. employ generally accurate language in the description of the learners and the lesson, and in the commentary on language samples

2b. demonstrate appropriate understanding and use of terminology to describe a range of learner language

Range and Flexibility

2c. employ appropriate professional-to-professional discourse

Organisation and Content

2d. provide examples of the spoken language of learners and the contexts in which they occurred

2e. draw reasonable conclusions from examples about the learners’ progress in English

Audience Awareness

2f. inform a professional reader.
NOTES TO CENTRES

a. Emphasise that candidates should include accurate as well as inaccurate, and appropriate as well as inappropriate examples of language use, i.e. they should avoid focusing exclusively on errors.

b. Candidates should show some variety in the aspects of language they choose to focus on, i.e. they should aim to illustrate more than just one or two categories of language (e.g. grammar, pronunciation, vocabulary, function, discourse, style).

c. While candidates are making notes during the lesson, they should note samples of learner language use which they think are interesting. They then select the best examples when reading their notes afterwards. Remind them also to note the minimal context of each sample (e.g. the topic the learner was talking about, a teacher question to which the learner was responding). Alternatively, they may choose to record a whole lesson and select samples when listening to the recording.

d. Candidates should, where possible, observe a live lesson. If this is not possible, they may in exceptional circumstances use a video-recording of a lesson given by another teacher. In such cases, centres should ensure that individual candidates use different video recorded lessons.

e. Centres should indicate, by means of a statement signed by a tutor, that to the best of their knowledge the candidate’s work is based on an authentic lesson.

NOTES TO CENTRES

a. One of the samples must be written by a learner of at least intermediate level and be of around 200 words in length. If necessary, centres should help candidates to obtain texts at the level required, e.g. where a candidate teaches only lower level classes him/herself, by asking colleagues with higher level classes to provide texts. The requirement to use a sample of at least 200 words written by a learner of at least intermediate level has been made for standardisation purposes. Individual candidates should not be given the same piece of work as a sample.

b. Before starting work on the assignment, the candidate should label the work indicating learner level and age if appropriate. They should then make two copies of both samples.

c. Centres could use samples written by learners of a range of levels and ages in input sessions so as to expose candidates to the different demands of giving feedback on a variety of learners’ written work.

d. The rationale should give justification for such areas as: the style of feedback (e.g. error code, full correction); any types of errors consistently left uncorrected; the style and content of the summarising comment to the learner.
Task 4: Focus on the teacher’s language

FORMAT
- Length: 750–1,000 words

Task outline
You are required to audio or video record yourself teaching a lesson (or part of a lesson) and select from the recording a minimum of six samples of your classroom talk. You should then comment on both positive and negative aspects of the language you have used in terms of its accuracy and appropriacy for teaching. The samples should show various aspects of language (e.g. grammar, pronunciation, vocabulary, function, discourse, style).

Guidelines
1. Briefly describe the learners (e.g. age, level of English) and the lesson (e.g. topic, objectives).
2. Select a minimum of six different/varied samples of language that you used and describe the contexts in which the language was used (e.g. the topic you were talking about, a student’s comment to which you were responding).
3. Comment briefly on each sample showing whether the language is accurate and/or appropriate for teaching the chosen lesson (or part of the lesson) and, in the case of inaccurate or inappropriate language, show insight into how you might have expressed yourself differently.

SYLLABUS FOCUS
1. Concepts and terminology used in English language teaching for describing form and meaning in language and language use.
2. Language used by teachers and learners.
3. Teacher and learner language.
5. Using spoken English in the classroom.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA
Tutors should mark all written assignments using the General Mark Scheme for the assessment of written language for Component One on page 37. The following task-specific criteria focus on particular considerations relevant to this task. These specific requirements are noted, where relevant, under the same general headings (‘Language Accuracy and Language Awareness’, ‘Range and Flexibility’, ‘Organisation and Content’, ‘Audience Awareness’) in order to guide task-specific assessment.

Pass level tasks will show that the candidate can:

Language Accuracy and Language Awareness
- 4a. demonstrate appropriate understanding and use of terminology to describe teacher language

Range and Appropriacy
- 4b. use appropriate professional-to-professional discourse

Organisation and Content
- 4c. select examples to exemplify range of language

Audience Awareness
- 4d. inform a professional reader.
NOTES TO CENTRES

a. Advise candidates to include accurate as well as inaccurate, and appropriate as well as inappropriate examples of language use. Assure candidates that they will not be penalised for examples of inaccurate or inappropriate language. The aim of this assignment is not to assess teacher language itself, but to assess the ability of teachers to comment on their classroom language. A sample may range from a single item (a word or phrase, or a mispronounced sound) to a longer stretch of discourse.

b. Candidates should show some variety in the aspects of language they choose to focus on, i.e. they should aim to illustrate more than just one or two categories of language (e.g. grammar, pronunciation, vocabulary, function, discourse, style) but not necessarily all of them. Remind them also to focus not only on accuracy but also on whether their language was appropriate for teaching within the context in which it was used in the lesson.

c. Candidates should audio or video record themselves teaching a lesson. If it is impossible for the candidate to obtain recording equipment of any sort, candidates may invite a colleague into their class to record in writing, samples of their language.

d. Centres should indicate, by means of a statement signed by a tutor, that to the best of their knowledge the candidate’s work is based on an authentic lesson.

NOTES TO CENTRES
This assignment gives candidates the opportunity to write accurate and appropriate English for a class/learner. As part of their worksheet, as well as comprehension questions, they can include other helpful learning activities. These could be language awareness tasks, advice or information about a language point, a practice activity for vocabulary, a grammar or functional area, instructions and guidance for a writing task, an answer key, and so on. One of the reasons for framing this task in the form of a worksheet for independent use by a learner for homework, for example, is to assess the candidate’s ability to write using clear language that is context-independent. In other words, the worksheet should be intelligible and clear to a user who is not able to ask for further clarification or reformulation. This places a premium upon accuracy and clarity of language. While it is not possible to completely separate language proficiency for professional purposes from methodological knowledge, the primary assessment focus for this task is on the candidate’s use of written language (see Band Descriptions on page 37 for marking criteria). Candidates must show an acceptable degree of audience awareness in their writing and be able to convey instructions or provide examples that use appropriate language for the user (users), but the task does not assume a sophisticated understanding of materials design.

Possible examples of worksheets
• The candidate finds an appropriate text and writes an introduction to the topic of the text, provides a glossary of unknown words, some questions on the text, some activities to help the user practise selected words and/or a grammar point, and writes an answer key.
• The candidate wants a learner to consult a website for homework. They write an interesting summary of the site to motivate the user, add some instructions to help the user access the site or specific information within it, and write some questions about the user’s opinion of the site. Finally, they write their own opinion of the site in a short text and ask the learner to write up their opinion.
• The candidate wants the user to write some dialogue balloons to accompany a strip cartoon. They write a worksheet in which instructions are given to read a short strip cartoon. They then provide language advice to help the learner notice the use of certain functional exponents contained in the cartoon, e.g. complaining. After consulting a reference work, they produce a table of exponents which vary according to formality, purpose and context. They then write a short quiz to practise the use of these exponents and provide an answer key with a playful commentary on the user’s score. A further cartoon is included containing instructions to the user to write a dialogue for the speech bubbles. Finally, suggested answers and a commentary are provided.

An important stage of this task is to elicit feedback from a user (users) of the worksheet, which should be incorporated in the summary. The focus of the questions should be on the clarity and appropriacy of the language used in the worksheet: Which aspects were clear/not clear? Did you always understand what to do? What difficulties did you have? How could the worksheet be improved?

It is important that the worksheet is the candidate’s own work. While coursebook material can be adapted for homework or independent use, there must be a sufficient volume of the candidate’s own writing for the tutor to make an assessment of their writing skills.

6h. select and grade language in response to learners’ language needs and potential difficulties
6i. show awareness and responsiveness to learners’ misunderstanding or lack of understanding. |

a. The idea behind this assignment is to give an opportunity for Language for Teachers courses and candidates on them to attend to the quality of their everyday classroom language.

b. Ideally, candidates should be observed and assessed with their own class, in their normal teaching environment. However, any ‘live’ teaching of real learners of English will be considered appropriate. Peers can be used if there is no other alternative.

c. In exceptional circumstances (e.g. where ‘live’ teaching is not possible for logistical, legal or other reasons) centres may use audio or video recordings of candidates teaching.

d. Although language and methodology are often inextricably linked, tutors should endeavour to focus on the quality of the candidate’s language and not be distracted by the quality of the methodology of the lesson or the classroom practice of the candidate.
Component Two: Teaching – Specifications for supervised and assessed teaching

FORMAT

You will teach a minimum of four lessons at one or two levels, supervised and assessed by a tutor. At least three of these lessons must be with classes of a size which is considered normal in local conditions. Each lesson should have a different language/skills focus as a main/subsidiary aim. For each lesson you must provide:

a lesson plan which:
- specifies the aims and learning objectives and states any important assumptions of prior knowledge needed for the achievement of aims
- describes the procedures planned
- includes a description of the language item/skill which the lesson focuses on
- is accompanied by a sourced copy of the materials to be used a rationale which:

- includes a brief profile of the learners and describes the age and level of the learners and outlines their linguistic and affective needs
- explains how the needs of the learners relate to the aims and objectives of the lesson
- provides a clear analysis of any anticipated problems and possible anticipated solutions

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

At Pass level, the candidate can:

1. Lesson planning
   a. identify learning objectives appropriate to the needs, age and ability level of the group
   b. select and/or adapt materials and/or activities suitable for the learners and the lesson objectives including, where appropriate, stories, art, music, investigations outside the classroom
   c. assign realistic timing to the stages in the lesson
   d. include an appropriate variety of activity, interaction and pace
   e. anticipate potential difficulties with language and activities
   f. present plans in language which is clear, accurate (including the appropriate use of terminology) and easy to read
   g. present materials for classroom use with a professional appearance and regard for copyright requirements

2. Classroom teaching skills
   a. establish rapport
   b. foster a constructive and safe learning environment taking into account appropriate learner and teacher roles
   c. set up and manage a range of classroom events
   d. maintain discipline, showing sensitivity to individual needs
   e. maintain learners’ interest and involvement
   f. teach in a way that encourages the development of learner autonomy
   g. teach language items effectively
   h. convey the meaning of new language with clear and appropriate context and check learners’ understanding of it
   i. help learners develop language accuracy
   j. monitor learners’ language performance and give appropriate feedback
   k. identify errors and sensitively correct learners’ oral and written language when and where appropriate
   l. make appropriate use of learners’ first and other languages
   m. teach language skills appropriately and effectively including literacy where relevant
   n. help learners develop language fluency
   o. use appropriate aids, materials and resources (including the board) effectively
   p. adapt plans and activities appropriately in response to the learners and to classroom contingencies
   q. achieve learning objectives

3. Lesson evaluation
   a. reflect critically on their plan and their teaching
   b. review and adapt their practice in the light of this reflection and of the views of tutors, colleagues and learners
   c. set targets for ongoing development (and, where appropriate, for the next assessed lesson)

4. Use of English
   use clear, generally accurate and appropriate language for all aspects of classroom teaching (see also assessment criteria on page 29).

At Merit level, the candidate can meet all of the above criteria. In addition, classroom performance will give strong and consistent evidence of all-round effectiveness as a classroom practitioner, in terms of qualities such as flexibility, organisational ability, independence of judgement, confidence, rapport with students and support for learning.

At Distinction level, the candidate can meet all the criteria specified above. In addition, there will be consistent evidence of exceptional ability in terms of the following:

- breadth of knowledge
- depth of understanding
- insight into learners and learning.

SYLLABUS FOCUS

Language knowledge and awareness (Unit 1)

The background to teaching and learning English (Unit 2)

Resources and materials (Unit 3)

Planning and management of teaching and learning (Unit 4)

Evaluation, monitoring and assessment (Unit 5)

Professional development (Unit 6)

Language for teachers (Unit 7)

Notes

- The format and assessment criteria are designed to ensure that candidates receive comprehensive and practical training in all aspects of teaching English as a foreign language.
- The criteria focus on the development of practical skills and knowledge, as well as the ability to reflect critically on one’s own teaching and learning.
- The syllabus focuses on a range of topics, including language knowledge and awareness, resources and materials, planning and management, evaluation, and professional development.
- The use of English criteria ensure that candidates can use clear and appropriate language in all aspects of classroom teaching.

At Merit level, the candidate can meet all of the above criteria. In addition, classroom performance will give strong and consistent evidence of all-round effectiveness as a classroom practitioner, in terms of qualities such as flexibility, organisational ability, independence of judgement, confidence, rapport with students and support for learning.

At Distinction level, the candidate can meet all the criteria specified above. In addition, there will be consistent evidence of exceptional ability in terms of the following:

- breadth of knowledge
- depth of understanding
- insight into learners and learning.
Component Three: Methodology – Assignment specifications

General assessment criteria

Pass level assignments will show that the candidate can:

1. Complete the assignment as detailed in the assignment outline.
2. Present the assignment in language which is sufficiently clear, accurate and easy to read in relation to the language requirements of ICELT. (See also Pass level criteria on page 37.)
3. Show knowledge and understanding of relevant theory and principles contained in the ICELT syllabus.
4. Draw on this knowledge and understanding to evaluate their own strengths and weaknesses as English teachers, and to draw up justified plans for their own continuing development as ELT practitioners.
5. Present materials with a professional appearance.
6. Include acknowledged references to a limited number of appropriate sources relevant to the theme of the assignment. Each assignment should provide evidence of the candidate having read sufficiently to show their understanding of the main points of accepted current theory and the ability to relate these points to their classroom practice.

The general criteria outlined above should be used to assess the four assignments outlined on pages 33–36. Specific criteria are included as part of each assignment.

NOTES TO CENTRES

a. This assignment can be developed from a skills or a language-based lesson.
b. Each section of the assignment should be roughly the same length.
c. For Sections 1a and 1b, it is not necessary for candidates to comment on elements from all four areas: a total of two or three points for 1a and 1b discussed in detail will be sufficient.
d. A copy of the original lesson plan should be submitted with the assignment.
e. For Section 3, candidates do not need to attach an amended lesson plan.
f. Candidates should outline development steps for both linguistic and professional development.
g. This lesson can be (but need not be) one of the lessons assessed for Component Two.

</tbody>
</table>

NOTES TO CENTRES

a. This assignment should be developed from a language-focused (not a skills-focused) lesson.
b. Candidates should include the original lesson plan and evaluation with the assignment.
c. Sections 1 and 2 will probably be roughly the same length.
d. Section 1b could refer to remedial or extension work with the target language.
e. In section 1, candidates are not required to describe practice activities or remedial/extension work in detail or analyse new target language in detail.
f. Section 2a could be presented as a full lesson plan, as a written description/rationale or as a combination of the two.
g. This lesson can be (but need not be) one of the lessons assessed for Component Two.
Assignment 3: Evaluating and supplementing materials

FORMAT
Length: 1,000–1,500 words

Assignment outline
You are required to analyse briefly some course material and to select some appropriate material to include in a lesson as a supplement. You should use this material in a lesson and then evaluate its effectiveness.

Guidelines
1a. Briefly go through a unit or selection of units in your course book/course materials. Describe how you might supplement it/them for use with a specific class commenting on what is missing or not appropriate, or simply how you might provide variety. State what you might need to supplement with additional material such as visuals, authentic texts or material adapted from other sources.
1b. Identify supplementary material and provide a rationale for selection and use.
2. Plan a lesson using your chosen supplementary material. Ensure a copy of all material, original and adapted, is included, and that copyright sources are fully referenced.
3. Teach the lesson and then evaluate the effectiveness of the material used. Reflect on what happened in the lesson and how this differed from your expectations at the planning stage. Outline what action you would take if you wanted to use the material again and why.

NOTES TO CENTRES
a. This assignment can be delivered from a skills or language-focused lesson.
b. Section 1 and Section 3 should be approximately the same length.
c. All the materials should be submitted as an appendix to the assignment.
d. Section 2 should include a copy of the lesson plan and a group profile if different from previous assignments. The profile should include information about the types of activities and materials that work well with this group to help provide the rationale for the choice of supplementary materials. The profile should also include any special needs such as deafness or dyslexia that may have influenced decisions on materials used.
e. Decisions on the use of supplementary materials should be linked to reflection on the learners’ coursebook.
f. Evaluation should refer to whether technical aids or the classroom resources were used to facilitate materials use, and if authentic materials were used, whether they were made accessible and how.
g. The lesson used for this assignment should not be one of the lessons assessed for Component Two. However, candidates will need to provide evidence that it was taught.

</table>

a. Each section of the assignment should be of roughly the same length.
b. Candidates may choose whether they focus on all the learners in the class or on a small group of them; they must not, however, deal with only one learner.
c. Candidates may choose whether they deal with the whole lesson or with only part of the lesson.
d. Candidates may work on what they remember of the lesson or may use an audio or video recording, and/or an observer.
e. Candidates should focus on one lesson, but this lesson may be one of a series of lessons in which individual differences among learners have been noted. The lesson can be (but need not be) one of the lessons assessed for Component Two. In either case, the full lesson plan should be attached as an appendix.

<tr>
<td>Distinction</td>
<td>Maintains consistent grammatical and lexical accuracy with very few errors, and none that impede communication. The speaker is not restricted to simple utterances and is capable of handling more complex structures when appropriate.</td>
<td>Has a good command of a broad range of language. Displays a wide repertoire of vocabulary and sensitivity to appropriate collocation and register. Sufficiently flexible to overcome any difficulties where particular items may be lacking. Can deploy language with a degree of delicacy almost always appropriate to context, function and intention. Nuances of meaning are conveyed clearly and there is nothing to cause confusion or misinterpretation.</td>
<td>Pronunciation is of a consistently high standard, with very few instances of mispronounced sounds. Can vary information and place sentence stress to express finer shades of meaning. All utterances are comprehensible without imposing any strain on the listener. Pronunciation may display features of L1 or regional accent but this does not affect communication. An excellent model for teaching purposes.</td>
<td>Can structure information in a completely logical way, showing a high degree of audience awareness. Shows evidence of paralinguistic features that help to convey and reinforce meaning, e.g. use of eye contact, pausing, chunking information.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Merit</td>
<td>Good grammatical and lexical control. Some slips and incidental errors occur, but do not detract from the effective communication of the speaker’s message.</td>
<td>Can express a good range of ideas with clarity and some degree of lexical delicacy. Can deploy quite a wide range of vocabulary and structures without much conspicuous searching for words. May lack the flexibility to convey fine shades of meaning.</td>
<td>Clear and consistent phonological control, with pronunciation very rarely causing any distortion of meaning or problems with comprehensibility. Provides clear indications of ability to reinforce meaning through the use of appropriate stress and intonation. A good model for teaching purposes.</td>
<td>Can organise information effectively, with a reasonable degree of audience awareness. Able to establish and maintain contact with audience, and to convey meaning without any ambiguity.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pass</td>
<td>Can communicate with reasonable accuracy and control. There may be a number of errors, but these do not seriously impede effective communication.</td>
<td>Generally clear, though clarity may be reduced when attempting to convey more complex ideas. Adequate, though limited repertoire of vocabulary and a restricted range of more complex structures. Has a fairly good range of simple language, but lacks flexibility and displays lexical limitations.</td>
<td>Pronunciation is generally clear enough to be understood, with reasonable control of basic stress and intonation patterns. An adequate model for teaching purposes.</td>
<td>Can convey key points with some confidence, though organisation may be flawed. Able to maintain listeners’ interest without excessive hesitation, though pauses may be needed for planning and/or repair.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not to standard</td>
<td>Uses some simple structures correctly but still systematically makes basic mistakes. Lack of grammatical and lexical control makes extended discourse quite difficult.</td>
<td>Very limited range of basic structures and a lexical repertoire evidently restricted to short, memorised chunks. Generally unable to maintain continuity of discourse.</td>
<td>Pronunciation is generally intelligible though L1 interference or marked regional accent frequently affects communication and puts a strain on the listener. Uncertain control of stress and intonation to convey or reinforce meaning.</td>
<td>Little ability to organise information effectively, showing minimal awareness of audience. Finds it hard to keep going. Displays little awareness of audience’s language level or needs.</td>
