Learning tips
Here are some ideas to boost your learning - give them a go today!

Don’t get discouraged if you aren’t learning English fast enough. It’s quite common to experience highs and lows rather than improving at a steady pace. Keep your goal in sight and work towards it!

Some phrasal verbs have more than one meaning, which can make them tricky to learn. When you spot a new phrasal verb, check the meaning in a dictionary and write it down with an example sentence to help you remember how to use it.

Try to practise your English as much as possible in your daily life. Listen to English when you are cooking or doing jobs around the home or read something in English on your way to work or school.

When you come across new adjectives, note down the nouns they commonly pair up with. A good dictionary will help you. Example: avant-garde art/cinema/painting (very original or modern)

After reading a text in detail, try looking for useful phrases that you would like to remember and underline them. For example, if you have finished reading something to complete some comprehension questions, read it again and underline any new words.

Make sure you read different kinds of text in English. Don’t just stick to one. Read stories, poems, instruction manuals, newspapers, and so on. This will help you widen your vocabulary.

If learning English seems very challenging, break it down into smaller tasks. For example, don’t try to learn lots of new words in one go. Instead, focus on learning a few new words every week. You will be much more likely to remember them!

Try keeping a listening diary and log occasions when you listen to English. Note down any problems you experience and how you helped yourself to listen better. Compare recent entries with older entries to see how well you are progressing.

Do you ever feel like there are not enough hours in the day? You are not alone. Many of us lead busy lives. Trying to study English after school, work, family and other commitments can be difficult. Here are three simple ideas to help you with your time management.

1. Be realistic
   You might hope to study at least 5 hours every day. Is that really going to happen? Look at your daily routines realistically and decide when you can find some time to study. It’s better to aim for 15 minutes four times a week and do it than to plan for 2 hours five times a week and give up.

2. Make a plan
   Write down a clear plan. To help you with your plan, answer these questions:
   - When are you going to study? For how long?
   - Where are you going to study?
   - What are you going to study?

3. Follow the plan (or change it 😊)
   Now you have your personal study plan, do it! Set yourself a reminder on your phone. Arrange to study with a friend. Tell your family about your study plans, so they can check up on your progress. But remember, if you cannot manage to follow your plan, change it. It’s YOUR plan, so make it work for YOU.
Are you making progress?

If you’ve been learning English for a while it can be hard to know whether you are still improving. Some learners lose confidence after a while – they feel they made lots of progress when they first started learning English, but now they are at intermediate level, they find it hard to get better. The truth is, progress is often gradual (and sometimes slow), but if you are going to English lessons or studying regularly at home, you are almost certainly making progress. Here are some things you can do today to check your progress.

1. Go back in time
Get out an old notebook or find an email or story you wrote in English a year ago. Read it. Now correct it. Check your spelling and your vocabulary. Are your sentences simple? How would you write them today? You can probably see how much your English has improved over the year. Feel proud of yourself!

2. Write for the future
Sit down and write something for yourself. A letter to yourself, a story or whatever you like. Put it in an envelope and write the date six months into the future on the envelope. Leave it on your desk or somewhere you can see it every day. Open it in six months’ time (on the date on the envelope) and read it. Your English will be better then. Now that’s something to look forward to!
English around you

Learning English can be tricky if you don’t live in an English-speaking country. Here are a few ideas for how you can bring English into your daily life.

1. Be smart with your smartphone
   Change your smartphone, laptop and tablet settings to English. This will give you instant daily reading practice. Try it – you’ll be surprised how quickly you will pick up new vocabulary.

2. Go to the movies
   Watch films in English at the cinema, put on a DVD or stream a movie or TV programme online. Make sure you watch it in English – with or without subtitles.

3. Be social
   Use social media in English. Find a page on a topic you are interested in and comment in English. You can practise your writing skills, your reading skills and be part of a global community all at the same time. For a fun English language community, join us on Facebook at:

Exam tips

We’ve put together some exam tips useful for Cambridge English: First, Advanced and Proficiency. Find out more about our exams at cambridgeenglish.org/exams

Reading
Don’t rely on ‘word spotting’ – just because the same word, name, or date appears in the text and the question, don’t assume it is automatically the right answer.

Do lots of general reading practice in class and at home, especially the kinds of texts used in the Cambridge English exams.

Writing
Don’t worry if you go over the word limit for writing tasks a little bit.

If you are writing an article, the main purpose is to interest and engage the reader. Make sure you include some opinion or comment about the topic.

Listening
Transfer your answers accurately to the answer sheet.

Use the preparation time before each recording is played to read through the questions and think about the context.

Speaking
Don’t try to dominate your partner or interrupt them abruptly during the Speaking test.

Don’t prepare long answers in advance, or learn and practise speeches.
