About the exam

B2 First for Schools is a rigorous and thorough test of English at Level B2. It covers all four language skills – reading, writing, listening and speaking – and includes a fifth element focusing on the candidate’s understanding of the structure of the language.

A thorough test of all areas of language ability

There are four papers: Reading and Use of English, Writing, Listening and Speaking. The overall performance is calculated by averaging the scores achieved in Reading, Writing, Listening, Speaking and Use of English. The weighting of each of the four skills and Use of English is equal.

Reading and Use of English: 1 hour 15 minutes

Candidates need to be able to understand texts from publications such as fiction and non-fiction books, journals, newspapers and magazines.

Writing: 1 hour 20 minutes

Candidates have to show that they can produce two different pieces of writing: a compulsory essay in Part 1, and one from a choice of three tasks in Part 2.

Listening: 40 minutes (approximately)

Candidates need to show they can understand the meaning of a range of spoken material, including lectures, radio broadcasts, speeches and talks.

Speaking: 14 minutes per pair of candidates, and 20 minutes per group of three candidates

Candidates take the Speaking test with another candidate or in a group of three, and are tested on their ability to take part in different types of interaction: with the examiner, with the other candidate and by themselves.

Each of the four test components contributes to a profile which defines the candidate’s overall communicative language ability at this level.

Tips for preparing learners for the Reading and Use of English paper

- ✓ Your students should be encouraged to read a wide range of texts both in class and at home so that they build up a broad vocabulary and become familiar with the many uses of different structures. This should enable them to deal with a range of lexical items and grammatical structures in a variety of text types. Classroom reading can include a range of reading texts from coursebooks and reading-skills books at this level, as well as articles online from newspapers and magazines on topics of interest. As part of the homework assignments, a weekly reading scheme could be started. Your students could be asked to provide verbal or written reviews of the texts they have read. These could include graded readers, unabridged short stories or novels, non-fiction, newspaper or magazine articles, etc. Where possible, encourage your students to follow up on their hobbies and interests by reading about sport, cars, fashion, etc. in English in magazines or online. Reading up about hobbies etc. could also lead to written articles for a class project, or short talks. Students should be encouraged to read both online and in print depending on which version of the exam they are doing.
- ✓ When studying for the exam, it will be useful for your students to refer to dictionaries and grammar books. However, they should also develop strategies for operating independently of reference books by, for example, guessing the meaning of unknown words from the context, as they are not permitted to take dictionaries into the exam with them.
- ✓ Students should develop an efficient personal system for recording the new vocabulary they learn. They should record as much detail as possible.
- ✓ Encourage your students to plan their time carefully and not spend too long on any one part of the test. They should try to make sure that they have a few minutes at the end of the test to check through their answers. They can do the various parts of the test in any order so should decide the most suitable order for them.
- ✓ Where texts have a title, encourage your students to pay attention to it as it will indicate the main theme of the text.
- ✓ Encourage your students to read through each text carefully before beginning to answer the questions so that they have a clear idea of what it is about.
- ✓ In Parts 2 and 4, there may be more than one permissible answer for a question. However, students should only give one answer for each question. If they give two answers, and one of them is incorrect, they will not be given a mark. If they want to change an answer, they should delete it or rub it out.
- ✓ Where there are examples, students should refer to them to help them understand what they have to do. Remind them that in the paper-based exam they must not write the answer to the example on their answer sheet.
- ✓ Make your students aware that correct spelling is essential in Parts 2, 3 and 4.
- ✓ With coursebook texts, encourage your students to focus on any pre-reading questions. These stimulate interest in the topic covered by the text and train your students in valuable prediction techniques.
- ✓ Some coursebooks include questions which are to be answered while reading a text. These will help your students to work their way through the text and interpret the meaning of more complex passages. The questions will also involve them in using different reading strategies. It is useful to encourage your students to be aware of alternative ways of dealing with texts so they can decide which ones suit them best.
- ✓ Make sure your students are familiar with the format of the tasks. Train them to read carefully the instructions on the front page of the question paper and at the start of each task. The instructions give a brief context for each text and remind candidates what they have to do.
- ✓ When your students are familiar with the different task types, discuss with them which part(s) take them longer to complete. Following this discussion, you could work out with them possible timings for each task. Remind them that each task is worth approximately equal marks. The outcome of the discussion will also help you to decide which task types to concentrate on in future classes and where assistance is needed with developing particular reading skills.

Completing the digital test

(digital test only)

- All answers are typed directly onto the computer.
- Candidates may take pens and pencils and water in a clear, see-through bottle into the exam room, but nothing else (including bags and anything electronic).
- Candidates should listen carefully to the instructions which the invigilator gives and follow the instructions on the computer screen.
- There is a timer on the screen which tells candidates how much time they have left.
- Candidates may make notes on paper during the exam. They must leave these notes on their desk at the end of the exam.
- Sometimes candidates may decide that the answer they have written is wrong and wish to change it. This can easily be done in all parts of the test by clicking on a different option or by deleting and rewriting the answer.
- Give your students practice in reading and manipulating (highlighting, adding notes etc) texts on screen. There is a guide with advice and activities click here teaching-tips-for-computer-based-cambridge-english-qualifications.pdf or scan the QR code below

- Give your students practice in using the digital platform so they are familiar with the different features before exam day. The questions they have answered or left are indicated at the bottom of the screen so they can easily go back and complete unanswered questions.

Completing the answer sheet

(paper-based test only)

- All answers must go on an answer sheet.
- Candidates should use a pencil to complete the answer sheet.
- There is no additional time allowed for completing the answer sheet.
- Students can do the various parts of the test in any order, but it may be better to do them in the order of the question paper so as to avoid the possibility of putting answers in the wrong sections of the answer sheet.
- For the Reading and Use of English component, candidates shade a lozenge on the answer sheet to show their answer for Parts 1, 5, 6 and 7 and write their answers on the correct part of the answer sheet for Parts 2, 3, and 4.
- Sometimes candidates may decide that the answer they have written is wrong and wish to change it. If this happens in Parts 1, 5, 6 or 7, they will need to rub out the mark they have made and mark a different lozenge. In Parts 2, 3 and 4, they should clearly rub out the word or words and replace them. They should not try altering the word itself as this will make it unclear. They should not put the word in brackets as it will appear to be an alternative.
- Remind your students that handwriting should be clear so that it can be read easily by the markers.
- Give your students practice in completing the answer sheet. When writing their answers on the answer sheet, they must be careful to make sure that they put the answer by the appropriate question number. This is especially important if they leave some questions unanswered. They must also be sure to write in capital letters in Parts 2, 3 and 4.
- Show your students how to fill in the answer sheet and give them practice in doing this in a timed exercise. Explain to them that they can transfer their answers after each task or at the end of the paper.

Reset

Part 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 Part 2 0 of 8 Part 3 0 of 8 Part 4 0 of 6 Part 5 0 of 6

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 1 consists of a text in which there are eight gaps. Each gap represents a missing word or phrase. Candidates have to choose which one of the four words or phrases in the set fills the gap correctly.
- ▶ Candidates are required to draw on their lexical knowledge and understanding of the text in order to fill the gaps. Some questions test at a phrasal level, such as collocations and set phrases. Other questions test meaning at sentence level or beyond, with more processing of the text required. A lexico-grammatical element may be involved, such as when candidates have to choose the option which fits correctly with a following preposition or verb form.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Remind your students that different types of words are tested in this part. Sometimes it is necessary to choose between words with a similar meaning, e.g. choosing leaking rather than spilling, pouring or flowing to fill the gap in The roof of our tent was At other times it will be necessary not simply to know the meaning but also to know which word is correct because of the preposition, adverb or verb form which follows, e.g. choosing interested rather than keen, enthusiastic or eager to fill the gap in You may be ... in applying for this job.
- ▶ Give your students practice in recognising the differences in meaning between similar words, e.g. cut and tear. They should try to learn whole phrases as well as individual words in context, and they should be aware that knowing the grammatical patterns and collocations of words is as important as knowing their meaning.
- ▶ This part of the paper also tests collocations, such as to pay attention to, and linking phrases such as even if. Phrasal verbs are also tested here. They may be tested in three different ways: the whole of the phrasal verb, e.g. keep on, just the verb itself, e.g. keep, or just the preposition or adverb which follows the verb, e.g. on. Thus, some questions test at a phrasal level, while others test meaning at sentence level or beyond, with more processing of the text required.
- ▶ Remind your students to make sure the answer they choose fits into the sentence. They should not choose their answer simply after reading the words which come before the gap; they need to read the words which follow as well. It is sometimes the case that a preposition or adverb which follows a gap determines which of the options is correct.
- ▶ Get your students used to reading all the options for any question before deciding which one fills the gap correctly, and remind them that they should never choose more than one option as the answer.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's knowledge of vocabulary and grammar.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Reading and Use of English Part 2

Questions 9–16
For each question, write the correct answer. Write one word for each gap.

Camels

The most distinctive feature of a camel is the hump, or humps, on its back. In these humps camels store fat is used as energy when they don't have access to food. They can put with very difficult conditions, drinking only a little no water for up to seven days. When they reach a place where they can drink, they soak up water a sponge – they can drink 135 litres in 13 minutes! And their mouths are tough that they can eat most types of plant.

Camels thought by many to have poor hearing. But although their ears are small, their hearing is actually very sharp. Camels can be almost any shade of brown, from pale cream to almost black and they have long necks to allow them to reach high branches. Despite the that camels can be trained as useful working animals, they don't always do is expected!

Part 1 0 of 8 Part 2 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 Part 3 0 of 8 Part 4 0 of 6

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 2 consists of a text in which there are eight gaps. Candidates are required to draw on their knowledge of the structure of the language and understanding of the text in order to fill the gaps. In this part, as there are no sets of words from which to choose the answers, candidates have to think of a word which will fill the gap correctly.
- ▶ The focus of the gapped words is either grammatical, such as articles, auxiliaries, prepositions, pronouns, verb tenses and forms, or lexico-grammatical, such as phrasal verbs, linkers and words within fixed phrases. The answer will always be a single word. In some cases, there may be more than one possible answer and this is allowed for in the mark scheme.
- ▶ The absence or misuse of punctuation is ignored, although spelling, as in all the Use of English parts of the paper, must be correct.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ As in Part 1, candidates need to read the words which follow the gap as well as those which come before it. Tell your students that they should make sure that if they are filling the gap with a verb, it agrees with its subject.
- ▶ Remind students to keep in mind a sense of the whole text.
- ▶ Make your students aware that they must use only one word to fill each of the gaps. They should never use abbreviations (e.g. sthg for something), and (with the exception of can't = cannot) they should not fill any of the gaps with a contraction (e.g. didn't, he'll), as these count as two words.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's knowledge of vocabulary and grammar.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Reading and Use of English Part 3

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 3 consists of a text containing eight gaps. Separated from the text, there is a stem word in capital letters. In the digital test, this appears on the right of the screen. In the paper based test, this appears at the end of some of the lines. Candidates need to form an appropriate word from given stem words to fill each gap.
- ▶ The focus of this task is primarily lexical, though an understanding of structure is also required. It tests the candidates' knowledge of how prefixes, suffixes, internal changes and compounds are used in forming words. Candidates may be required to demonstrate understanding of the text beyond sentence level.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Students should be made aware of the range of words which can be formed from the same stem word, e.g. compete, competition, competitor, competitive, competitively, and the negative forms of these words e.g. uncompetitive. In the examination when they see the stem word at the end of a line, they must not automatically write a related word which they know well as their answer. They need to read the surrounding sentence to decide what the missing word is.
- ▶ Sometimes the missing word will need to be in the plural, and sometimes it will need to be in a negative form. The sense of the text around the gap will help candidates decide if it is necessary to put the word in the plural or to make it negative.
- ▶ Make your students aware that answers will not always need only prefixes or suffixes to be added to a word; sometimes internal changes will need to be made (e.g. long to length).
- ▶ Remind your students that each stem word applies only to the gap with the same number, or in the paper-based exam, the gap on the same line. They must not try to form a word from that stem word in any other line. In every case the stem word will have to be changed.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's knowledge of vocabulary.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Reading and Use of English Part 4

Questions 25–30
For each question, complete the second sentence so that it means the same as the first. Do not change the word given. You must use between two and five words, including the word given.

It's been over six months since I last saw Dan.

SEEN

I _____ over six months.

Part 1 0 of 6 Part 2 0 of 6 Part 3 0 of 6 Part 4 25 26 27 28 29 30 Part 5 0 of 6

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 4 consists of six questions. Each question contains three parts: a lead-in sentence, a key word, and a second sentence of which only the beginning and end are given. Candidates have to fill the gap in the second sentence so that the completed sentence is similar in meaning to the lead-in sentence. The gap must be filled with between two and five words, one of which must be the key word. The key word must not be changed in any way.
- ▶ In this part of the test the focus is both lexical and grammatical and a range of structures is tested. The ability to express a message in a different way shows flexibility and resource in the use of language.
- ▶ The mark scheme splits the answer into two parts and candidates gain one mark for each part which is correct.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ In preparing for this part of the test, give your students practice in paraphrasing. This might include rewriting sentences from texts, saying things again 'in other words', as well as working on lexical synonyms and grammatical transformations. In the examination, they must make sure that the answer makes the second sentence mean, as far as possible, the same as the lead-in sentence.
- ▶ Remind your students that the answer must consist of two, three, four or five words. If candidates write more than five words they will not be awarded the marks.
- ▶ Remind your students that they must use the key word in their answer and they must not change it in any way. If they do not use it or if they alter it, they will not be awarded the marks.
- ▶ Make sure your students pay careful attention to any verb in the final part of the second sentence as it will often indicate whether to use a singular or plural noun in the answer.
- ▶ Remind your students that when typing or writing their answers, they should not write the whole or part of the second sentence; they should write the words that are needed to fill the gap, including the key word.
- ▶ When they are counting the words, students should remember that, as in Part 2, they must count contracted words (with the exception of can't = cannot) as the full form (e.g. didn't = two words did not).

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's knowledge of vocabulary and grammar.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Questions 21–26
Read the extract from a novel below. For each question, choose the correct answer.

How did I ever manage to get myself into this? Sandy wondered about last then glanced, although no one was there to hear her. She looked down again from the top of the slope and quickly shut her eyes to look out the right. 'Help! she said, praying in words more than a whisper with her eyes still closed. Michael? Anyone? Please, someone help me out of this mess! She was knee-deep the second time, but without anyone ready to respond – not even Michael, the best friend – it did little to recover her present dilemma.

All happen, short-haired Sandy was quite tall for her age, but this, which only gave her an appearance of greater height. At the moment, she was dressed in a colorful, thick winter jacket that had a bold stripe and white design sweeping across a purple background. Her smooth, wavy, shoulder-length hair was the same shade as her jacket – a low, dusky, a fashionable, controlled color. Then, with a sudden glare, she looked at her hands, and her eyes with rapidity of – Sandy – with a glaze to her face and she began to giggle. 'I never had been asked to see her, despite the way she was, she would have been clearly visible from a long distance away against the almost solid white background of this snow-covered hill.

Sandy opened her eyes and glanced again at the sign posted near her at the top of the slope. It was a thick, laminated sign, an expert hand all her. How had she ended up here? She repeated the name that Michael had at least shown enough sense to get off the hill at an earlier opportunity to go down a more moderate slope. Attached by the wire from near the top of the slope beyond Michael's rope to the lane below she – inland between California on the west side of the range and Nevada on the east – she had foolishly decided to ride the lift up the hill and had found herself hanging in the air. She had not seen above her anything more that might have been a sign.

Sandy tightened slightly, tightly gripped her ski poles in her gloved hands, pointed her skis straight, and pushed back on the poles in her hands enough to cause herself to inch forward as all other avenues seemed to be closed to her. Once more than half of the length of her skis was sticking out into the air – only that back ends were still making contact with the snow at the slope's top – she reached toward the front, her skis followed, and she found herself rapidly picking up speed as she headed straight down the excessively challenging slope.

'How am I supposed to stop now?' Sandy shouted, but with the wind whipping by and the trees rushing past on either side of her, she could hardly hear herself. Everything she had learned about skiing in the previous few days seemed to have flown from her mind. Concentrating first on maintaining her balance, she kept her skis pointed straight downhill, which unfortunately only made her pick up more speed on the slope, or surge.

Someone would know how to ski expertly down this slippery slope. Sandy thought as she tried to imagine herself as Simone, international top and winner of the Olympic Ladies' slalom event and that Sandy loved to read. Coming up ahead of her, Sandy saw the ski instructor Michael had gotten off earlier. She desperately hoped she would find her friend among the skiers and snowboarders waiting there and she would be able to stop.

21. What is the writer's purpose in the first paragraph?
 to explain why Sandy was in this difficult situation to give relevant details of Sandy's character to introduce the fact that Sandy was facing a challenge to describe how Sandy was planning to solve a problem

22. What does the writer suggest about Sandy's clothes?
 They made it unlikely that she would be spotted.
 She was wearing them because she belonged to a skiing team.
 They were too heavy for the conditions.
 She had chosen them with care.

23. The writer says that Sandy 'reproached herself' to show that she felt sorry for herself.
 was annoyed with herself.
 was angry with Michael.
 was worried about Michael.

24. Why did Sandy start skiing down the slope?
 She was trying to get to the top of the slope.
 She was trying to get to the bottom of the slope.
 She was trying to get to the top of the mountain.
 She was trying to get to the bottom of the mountain.

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 5 consists of a text, followed by six 4-option multiple-choice questions which test the understanding of content and text organisation. The text may be taken from, for example, a modern novel or an article. Questions may focus on the main ideas or details in the text, and on the attitudes or opinions expressed. Candidates may also be asked to deduce the meaning of a word or phrase and to demonstrate understanding of references, such as pronouns, within the text. Additionally, questions may focus on the tone of the text or the writer's purpose, as well as the use of exemplification or comparison. These questions may require candidates to infer the meaning from clues in the text, a skill which is an essential part of reading ability.
- ▶ The 4-option multiple-choice questions are presented in the same order as the information in the text so that candidates can follow the development of the writer's ideas as they work through the questions. The final question may require candidates to interpret an aspect of the text as a whole.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Train your students to read through the text before looking at the questions. As three out of the four options are incorrect, there is no point in trying to absorb them all before tackling the text.
- ▶ Get your students to read each question carefully so that they have some idea of what they need to look for.
- ▶ Warn your students about the risks of 'word spotting', that is assuming that an option must be correct simply because it contains a word that is also in the text. Students need to check that the meaning of an option is reflected in the text, not that one word is the same in both.
- ▶ When the questions take the form of incomplete sentences, encourage your students to read both parts of the sentence carefully. They need to check that the whole sentence matches what is written in the text and not just the phrase in one of the options.
- ▶ Make sure your students read texts in which opinions, ideas and attitudes are expressed, such as interviews with actors or musicians in which they explain their interests and what they believe helped them to become successful, or extracts from novels which focus on characters' feelings.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's ability to recognise meaning from context and follow text organisation features such as exemplification, comparison and reference, knowledge of vocabulary and grammar. There is an emphasis on detailed understanding of a text.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 2 marks.

Reading and Use of English Part 6

Questions 27-42

Read the article about a schoolboy who has come up with a clever invention. Six sentences have been removed from the text below. For each question, choose the correct answer. There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

Young Inventor

Schoolboy Tim Freeman has come up with a clever idea to improve the efficiency of school buses.

Tim Freeman was just twelve years old when he came up with a revolutionary idea that would make school buses more energy efficient. This would not only save money, but also help the environment. Five years later, the schoolboy finally saw his dream come true.

It all began when Tim did a short summer course on aerodynamics, the study of the movement of air around objects.

He realised that the perfect solution for his school bus, it had very square front which meant it was not very aerodynamic, only travelling 30km per hour, compared to a private car that can average about 80km per hour. He decided to see if he could improve the vehicle.

After thinking about the problem, Tim came up with the idea of attaching a large piece of strong transparent plastic to the front of the vehicle, covering the windscreen. It would help redirect the flow of air around the bus and thus make it move forwards more easily.

At first, that was the theory.

When his science teachers loved the idea, Tim needed to find enough money to build a model and test it.

Helped by his older sister Alice, he managed to obtain a grant from an organisation that helps young people develop new ideas.

Over the next year, Tim used the money to build a small scale model of his invention. He did this on it by attaching it to a toy school bus and seeing how it performed in a wind tunnel he built in his garage.

Because of the money he now needed to stop it up and create a life-size version that could be put on the back of a real bus.

By the time Tim was fifteen, he had set up a team of young engineers like himself, and been invited by his father and his local community to obtain another grant to develop his idea further. While Tim and his team were able to build the initial version, they soon realised that they needed some expert help to make it go.

The person who volunteered was the one who had inspired Tim to start thinking about the project in the first place. She had taught him on the summer course when he was twelve. Along with two of her engineering students she worked with Tim through the summer to help him realise his dream.

The new version of Tim's invention looks rather different from the original idea. Instead of a transparent piece of plastic that covers the windscreen of the bus, it is a smooth wing-shaped that runs from the roof of the bus.

It helps down on air and real roads it has helped increase the efficiency of school bus.

So they began writing to local universities to see if anyone would provide the advice and knowledge they needed.

This made it clear to them that the design would have to be changed.

This prompted Tim to look for a way to see what he had learned.

This did have these very good and this has no lasting potential.

He knew that was the only way to see if his design really worked.

This design provides the same benefits but costs less to manufacture and install.

In this way, the bus would become more energy efficient.

Part 1: 0 of 5 Part 2: 0 of 5 Part 3: 0 of 5 Part 4: 0 of 5 Part 5: 0 of 5 Part 6: 07 39 40 41 42 Part 7: 0 of 10

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 6 consists of one text, for example an extract from a magazine, from which six sentences have been removed and placed in jumbled order after the text, together with a seventh sentence which does not fit in any of the gaps. Candidates are required to decide from where in the text each sentence has been removed. Each sentence may be used only once, and there is one sentence that candidates do not need to use. The task tests understanding of how texts are structured.
- ▶ Rather than concentrating on individual sentences, candidates need to be able to follow the development of ideas, opinions and events through the text as a whole, using their understanding of text coherence and cohesion devices.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Train your students to read through the text with gaps in it first so that they gain an overall idea of the structure of the text and the development of the writer's ideas, before starting to do the task.
- ▶ When your students are selecting a sentence to fill a gap, make sure that they look carefully at the information before and after the gap. Candidates sometimes make the wrong choices by selecting options which seem to fit the text before the gap, and neglecting to check that the text after the gap follows on logically.
- ▶ Give your students plenty of practice in recognising a wide range of linguistic devices which mark the logical and cohesive development of a text, for example words and phrases indicating time periods, cause and effect, exemplification, contrasting arguments, repetition, concordance of tenses, pronouns, etc.. This will help them to make the correct choice between two possible sentences which seem rather similar at first sight.
- ▶ As in Part 5, it is important to discourage your students from relying on 'word spotting', that is assuming that if the same word, name, date, etc. appears in the surrounding text and one of the options, that is automatically the right sentence to fill the gap. Train them to check all the other linguistic clues carefully before making their final decision.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ In this part there is an emphasis on text structure, cohesion and coherence, and the candidate's ability to follow the development of a text.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 2 marks.

Reading and Use of English Part 7

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 7 consists of one long text or up to six shorter texts, preceded by 10 questions. Candidates are required to locate the specific information which matches the questions. To do this, they need to understand detail, attitude or opinion in the question and locate a section of text where that idea is expressed, discounting ideas in other sections which may appear similar but which do not reflect the whole of the question accurately. Some of the options may be correct for more than one question.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Your students will need practice in skimming and scanning texts quickly for specific information in order to prepare for this task. Once they have done this, it may be helpful to divide the class into teams and encourage them to 'race' against each other. Points should be deducted for incorrect answers, to emphasise the need for accuracy as well as speed.
- ▶ In class, ask your students to tell you why a particular part of the text matches a question. This will help them to check their choices carefully. Once again, discourage them from choosing an answer on the basis of similar vocabulary alone.
- ▶ Give your students plenty of opportunity to read book and film reviews or articles in which a number of different people express their thoughts about their hobbies, etc. You could also ask students, either as a pair or group activity in class, or as a homework assignment, to devise their own Part 7 task, based on texts you provide or ones that they find for themselves. Writing challenging questions for their classmates to try will help the students understand what clues they will need to look for when tackling a real Part 7 task.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ In this part there is an emphasis on locating specific detail, and recognising opinion and attitude in one long text, or a group of short texts.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

The history of surfing undoubtedly goes (0) a long way. It seems to (9) formed a central part of the culture of the Polynesian people, who were inhabitants of islands in the Pacific Ocean (10) as Samoa, Tonga and Hawaii. Reading and Use of English • Part 5

You are going to read an extract from a novel about a teenager called Scotty Weems. For questions 31 – 36, choose the answer (A, B, C or D) which you think fits best according to the text.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Scotty Weems

It began falling in the morning. I noticed it at the start of second period, biology, but I guess it could have started at the end of first period. There wasn't much to it at first, and it had been snowing a lot that month, so I didn't give it a great deal of thought. It was those small flakes, like grains of sugar. By third period, the flakes had fattened up and got serious, and people were starting to talk about it.

'Think they'll let us out early?' my friend, Pete said as we gathered our stuff and headed for our next class, Spanish. I looked out the window and sized it up. It was really coming down and there were already two or three centimeters on the windowsill. 'Maybe,' I said. 'Is it supposed to be a big one?' 'Supposed to be huge: Winter Storm Warning,' 'Where have you been?' he said. 'School, basketball practice, homework, whatever. Excuse me for not watching the weather forecast.'

'Well, if it's as big as all that, they'll probably let us go.'

'I hope you're right, Weems,' he said.

My name is Scotty Weems. I prefer 'Scotty', but most people, even my friends, call me 'Weems'. I guess it's easy to say. Anyway, I'm an athlete, so since I was a little kid, I've heard it shouted every time I've done something right and every time I messed up, too. These days it's on the back of my basketball jersey. I like to think that someday people will be chanting it from the sidelines: 'Weems! Weems! Weems!' Chanting fans make any name sound good.

It was a Tuesday, and before the snow started falling the main thing on my radar was the start of the basketball season. The first game was supposed to be that night. So when Pete said, 'Think they'll let us out early?' what I heard was, 'Think they'll cancel the game?' Pete Dubois was one of my best friends, him and Jason Gillispie. The three of us were pretty tight. Pete blended in.

It was sort of his role. It might sound strange, being known for what you aren't, but Pete wasn't super hip or incredibly smart. He listened to mainstream rock and wore whatever clothes he'd been given by his parents. You needed some kids like that, otherwise all you had were competing groups, all dressed in outfits that amounted to uniforms and trying to play their music louder than yours.

So for Pete, early dismissal just meant more time at home, playing video games and eating pizza. For me, it meant not collecting the payoff for all those hours of practice I'd put in over the off-season, all those jump-shots I'd taken in the gym and out in the driveway. 'They're going to cancel the game,' I said to Pete. 'That's for sure.'

'Oh, yeah,' said Pete. 'That's bad.'

Pete didn't play basketball, not in a team anyway. Neither did Jason. They were the same friends I'd always had, the neighborhood kids I'd ridden bikes with when we were nine. I guess it's kind of weird to still have the same friends as when you were a little kid. It's not like you're expected to move on by high school, but you're definitely allowed. And most sporty kids run in packs, you know? But I had only just got onto the first team, so I was still kind of an outsider there anyway. I knew those guys would like me just fine when I became one of the top players, and that was my goal for this season. As for my real friends, Pete and Jason, I didn't have to prove anything to them.

31 How does Scotty say he felt about the snow at first?

- A It was far too boring to think about.
- B It was no real cause for concern.
- C He was shocked by its sudden appearance.
- D He was relieved it was only falling lightly.

32 What does Scotty say about being called 'Weems'?

- A It is appropriate for an athlete.
- B He thinks his supporters will find it memorable.
- C He has become accustomed to it.
- D He regards it as an expression of admiration.

33 What does 'like that' in line 46 refer to?

- A being an average type of person
- B being interested in rock music
- C wearing carefully chosen clothes
- D hiding your real personality

34 What does 'not collecting the payoff' in line 52 mean?

- A failing to take a break from
- B doubting the result of
- C getting fed up with
- D missing out on the rewards of 35 What point is Scotty making when he talks about sporty kids running in packs?

- A they have a shared natural ability
- B they grew up together in the same neighbourhood
- C they have a strong group identity
- D they are all motivated to achieve

36 What do we learn about Scotty in the final paragraph?

- A He is embarrassed to be friends with people who aren't sporty.
- B He lacks confidence in his ability to make new friends.
- C He feels secure about the friendships he already has.
- D He values the friendship of the people in his basketball team.

You are going to read an article about a special kind of skateboard. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A – G the one which fits each gap (37 – 42). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

An amazing skateboard

The skateboard controlled by brainwaves that moves wherever you think it should.

Thinking of getting somewhere in a hurry? A new gadget from a company called Chaotic Moon Labs proves that the future of travel is only limited by the imagination. A skateboard they have developed, aptly named the Board Of Imagination, takes commands directly from the rider's brainwaves and transfers them to a motor that propels the board forward. You just think of a destination, and how fast you would like to get there, and the Board Of Imagination will set off – hitting a top speed of around 50km per hour. If you think that's too fast, it will slow down.

A film on the internet of the board being put through its paces by the general manager of Chaotic Moon Labs, who refers to himself simply as 'Whurley', shows that he has mastered the art of thinking his way from Point A to Point B. The secret of his success is special software in an onboard computer – and a clever headset that monitors and interprets brainwaves. So far, he's the world's leading pilot of the board.

On the video, Whurley demonstrates how the board is handled. He gets on, looking relaxed and confident. 38 As he puts it through its paces, he manages to hit fairly high speeds. The computer can be seen attached to the front of the board, and the motor is underneath. Whurley compares the process to imagining pulling yourself along with a rope. If you 'see' the destination in your mind, and how fast you want to get there, the Board Of Imagination's gadgetry will do the rest.

The whole concept started with another motorised board, called the Board of Awesomeness. That gadget used a tablet computer and an adapted computer games console to analyse hand movements. 39 The new version is more sophisticated and uses a special wireless headset which can detect signals from the brain and process them.

Whurley explains that the headset sends signals from the rider's brain to the computer via a connector built into the headset. Then, software installed on the computer controls the electric motor. Of course, riders who want to use the board need to be able to balance.

Whurley says this was a simple and painless process. He practised with just the headset and a computer so that a profile of how he 'thinks' could be made. That profile was then loaded onto the computer on the board. 41 Thinking about lunch, or boring work could bring the board to an abrupt halt.

Sounding like a man speaking from painful experience, Whurley says: 'We quickly realised that we would have to find a way to handle distraction. We've done the best we can to compensate. 42 The only thing they can do is practise. Hopefully over time they can learn to focus.'

A The only problem is that users really do have to keep their minds focussed.

E Apart from that basic requirement, they just have to get their brainwaves and the computer software to work together.

B As a result, they became easier to ride.

F It's clear, however, that there could be other skaters thinking themselves to various destinations in no time at all.

C Then, the board seems to take off of its own accord.

G These were then converted into commands for the motor.

D However, it will always be an issue for most riders.

You are going to read an article about four young environmentalists. For questions 43 – 52, choose from the four people (A – D). The people may be chosen more than once.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Which person

- is trying to explain how some behaviour has harmful effects?
- followed up a talk by offering an opportunity for practical action?
- says they were motivated by a desire to share their enthusiasm?
- believes that an idea they came up with worked well?
- selected something because it was relatively straightforward to deal with?
- received public recognition for their environmental contribution?
- says the future of the environment depends on a particular group of people?
- mentions someone whose expert knowledge highlighted a problem?
- helped to create a place that reflected their values?
- mentions having to gain consent to start on a project?

Young environmentalists

Four young people talk about their involvement in environmental projects.

I won a national award for the work I did on a project to build an environmental centre made entirely out of green materials. It's a 100% carbon neutral building, which means that all the building materials were reused or recycled. The centre is somewhere kids can learn how to take care of the environment, but I realised that not everyone would have the opportunity to visit it. I therefore created an online curriculum guide, so kids could also learn about the environment in their schools. I translated it into Spanish as well so that it could be available to more people. All this took two years and I did it because I have a great love for the outdoors and being in the midst of wildlife. I wanted other young people to be able to experience the same passion that I feel.

C Josh Benito

After seeing an article in the newspaper about an environmental competition, I felt inspired to do something related to planting trees so I set up a project at my local primary school. I gave a presentation to the kids teaching them about the importance of taking care of the environment and how trees can help. Then, each of the 300 pupils was given two young trees: one to take home and plant in their garden, and one to give to a neighbour or friend. I think the project was an effective way of getting the message across to more people. Attached to each tree was information about helping the environment and the name of the project. This experience has taught me leadership skills and how to organise a large group. I have also learned many things from having to meet and talk with many different individuals.

B Justin Day

While hiking near my home, I noticed a plant I didn't recognise growing along the side of the trail. My sister, a naturalist, told me the plant was an invasive, non-native plant that is toxic to local wildlife. I then discovered that there are a number of different types of non-native plants in my area. Some excrete poisons into the ground so nothing can grow there for many years. I had to get permission from the local council to remove some of them, but I realised I couldn't do it alone. So I set up an environmental organisation to recruit other teenagers to give me a hand. We all learnt how to properly identify, remove and dispose of the invasive plants. Our focus has mainly been on a plant called Dalmatian Toadflax, which is easier to pull up, so anyone can do it. We also work on replanting areas with native grass and wildflower seeds.

D Erica Klek

When I was at primary school, my friend and I got really involved in aluminium can recycling and we also did a project on the greenhouse effect. Later on at high school I helped co-ordinate an environmental event because I wanted to make more people aware of important issues. It's our generation that's going to make or break the environment. Some teenagers don't know they're doing the wrong things, and I want to help them understand. I recently prepared a guide for students interested in organising similar activities in their own schools, which has been distributed to most of the schools in my area. I've also been helping to replant trees after they were destroyed in a hurricane. Unfortunately, we lost a lot, both exotic and native species.

Paper 2:

Writing tasks

1 hour 20 mins

The test contains two parts. Candidates are required to complete two tasks: a compulsory one in Part 1 and one from a choice of three in Part 2.

PART	NUMBER OF QUESTIONS	NUMBER OF MARKS	TASK TYPES	FOCUS	FORMAT
1	1	20	Writing an essay (one compulsory task) 140–190 words	Focus on agreeing or disagreeing with a statement, giving information, giving opinion, giving reasons, comparing and contrasting ideas and opinions, drawing a conclusion.	Candidates are required to deal with input of up to 120 words. There is an opening rubric to set the scene, and then an essay question with two given prompts, plus a prompt requiring candidates to write about their own additional idea.
2	1	20	Writing (choose one task from a choice of three) 140–190 words	Writing one of the following: an article, email, letter, review or story.	A situationally based writing task specified in no more than 70 words.
TOTAL	2	40

Tips for preparing learners for the Writing test

- ✓ Candidates write most effectively when they choose tasks and topics suited to their interests and experience. When preparing students for the examination, it is important to ensure they are familiar with the paper and the range of task types and topics so that they can identify those which are most accessible to them.
- ✓ Train your students to read the questions carefully, highlighting or underlining the most important parts. They then need to make a plan, referring closely to the question and looking for opportunities to develop their ideas and show their range of language.
- ✓ The time allowed for the Writing test (1 hour 20 minutes) is designed to be sufficient for candidates to make brief plans and then write two answers.
- ✓ Your students need to think carefully about who the target reader is for each task and try to write in an appropriate style and tone.
- ✓ Linking ideas effectively is something your students will need guidance on. Using a variety of linking words is important, as is ensuring that the flow of ideas in the writing is logical and easy for the reader to follow.
- ✓ Your students should be encouraged to use a range of complex language. If, in doing so, they make mistakes, the examiner will always give credit for the complex language attempted, as long as the mistakes do not impede communication.
- ✓ Make sure your students have practice in answering questions without the use of dictionaries. Dictionaries are not allowed in the B2 First examination.
- ✓ Make sure your students are aware of the importance of spelling and punctuation. Although spelling errors and faulty punctuation are not specifically penalised, they can sometimes impede communication. (N.B. American usage and spelling are acceptable.) Remind them of the importance of checking their work.
- ✓ Each question on the Writing test carries equal marks, so your students should practise planning the time they spend on each question carefully, aided with developing particular reading skills.

Completing the digital test

(digital test only)

- There is a timer on the screen which tells candidates how much time they have left.
- Candidates may take pens and pencils and water in a clear, see-through bottle into the exam room, but nothing else (including bags and anything electronic).
- Students should be given timed practice of typing and editing their answers on screen so they are comfortable completing the tasks in the time available.

Completing the answer sheet

(paper-based test only)

- The questions are in a booklet. The answers are written in a separate booklet with lined pages.
- Any corrections they make should be clear, so that they are clear and can be easily followed.
- Counting words wastes time in an examination and leads to clumsy alterations to what a candidate has already written. Students need practice in writing tasks within the word limit so that they can estimate when they have written enough.
- Remind your students that they must write their answers in the answer booklet.
- It is important to write clearly so that the answers are easy to read. However, it is not important whether candidates write in upper or lower case, or whether their writing is joined up or not.

Expected word length

Candidates are asked to write 140–190 words for both Part 1 and Part 2.

Writing approximately the right number of words is an integral part of task achievement. If significantly fewer words are written, this is likely to mean that the task has not been successfully completed, whereas overlong pieces of writing may involve irrelevance, repetition of ideas, poor organisation and have a negative effect on the target reader.

Task types in the Writing paper

The different task types are intended to provide frameworks for candidates so that they can put together and develop their ideas on a topic with a purpose for writing and a target reader in mind. These indications of readership and purpose are not comprehensive, but are intended to provide some guidance about the different task types.

An article is usually written for an English-language magazine aimed at teenagers, and the reader is assumed to have similar interests to the writer. The main purpose is to interest and engage the reader, so there should be some opinion or comment.

An email is written in response to the situation outlined in the input information. Candidates can expect to write to, for example, a school principal or an English-speaking friend.

An essay is always written for the teacher. It should be well organised, with an introduction, the candidate's opinion on the ideas given, the candidate's own idea and an appropriate conclusion.

A letter is written in response to the situation outlined in the question. Letters in the B2 First for Schools Writing paper will require a response which is consistently appropriate in register and tone for the specified target reader. Candidates can expect to be asked to write letters to, for example, an English-speaking friend, a classmate, a school principal, or a magazine editor.

A review is usually written for an English-language magazine, newspaper or website. The main purpose is to describe and express a personal opinion about something which the writer has experienced (e.g. a film, a holiday, a product, a website etc.) and to give the reader a clear impression of what the item discussed is like. Description and explanation are key functions for this task, and a review will normally include a recommendation to the reader.

A story is usually written for an English language magazine or website for teenagers. The main purpose is to engage the interest of the reader. Effective answers have a clear storyline which links coherently to the first sentence, successfully uses the prompts provided and demonstrates a sound grasp of narrative tenses.

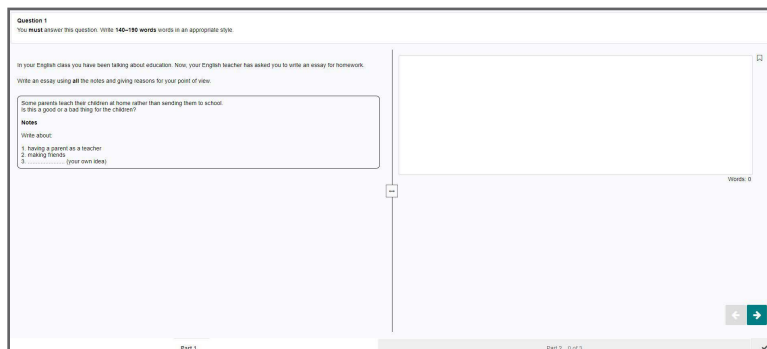

For all task types, questions are constructed to enable candidates to display their English language proficiency at CEFR B2 level; candidates should take special care to read every part of each question, and not to omit any required development of the topic.

Advice by task

This section shows example screenshots from the B2 First for Schools Digital exam. To access the complete digital sample test, please scan the QR code, or go to camengli.sh/3YHj7lg

Writing Part 1 - Compulsory task

THE TASK

- ▶ In Part 1, the task will be in the form of an essay question with prompts. The range of functions tested will include agreeing or disagreeing with a statement, giving opinions on a question, giving information or explanations, comparing and contrasting ideas and opinions, exemplifying and giving reasons and drawing conclusions. Candidates are required to write a discursive essay in grammatically correct English, using a neutral or formal register.

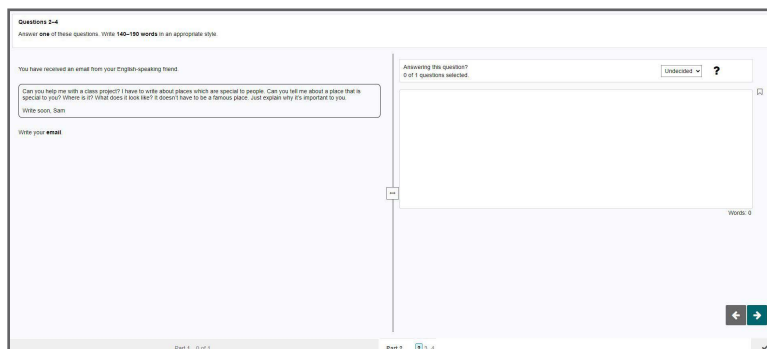

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ The input for Part 1 may be up to 120 words, including the rubric. The rubric will set the scene and topic for the essay. The essay may take the form of a direct question or statement, which candidates are asked to give their opinions about. The essay will have two given prompts which supply ideas clearly linked to the question or statement. Candidates must address both prompts and also introduce a third distinct idea of their own. This third idea is in addition to any overall conclusions. Candidates need to ensure that all the content of their essay is clear and easy to follow. Effective organisation and cohesion are important features of a successful essay. A range of structures will be required to communicate ideas and opinions, along with the use of appropriate vocabulary.
- ▶ It is vital that candidates read the rubric, essay question and prompts very carefully in order to understand what they are expected to do. Successful essays address the question or statement in a clear and logical way. It is important that candidates keep to the focus of the topic in question and that all their ideas and opinions are relevant to the question.
- ▶ Students need to become experienced at discussing the advantages and disadvantages of aspects of all kinds of topics at B2 level. Being able to support an opinion with reasons and examples is another skill required when writing an effective essay. The two given prompts help to guide and develop the essay and clearly relate to the question or statement. Candidates also need to think of a third idea of their own which is distinct from the two given prompts. Brainstorming ideas for different topics will be very useful practice for this. If any of the three essay prompts is missed out, then the target reader will not be fully informed and the candidate will be penalised.
- ▶ In order to hold the reader's attention successfully, candidates need to express their ideas in a clear and logical way, making sure that the development of the essay is smooth and easy to follow. Varying the length of sentences, using direct and indirect questions and using a variety of structures and vocabulary may all help to communicate ideas more effectively.
- ▶ Essays should be well organised and coherent. Students need practice in planning an essay effectively. The correct use of linking words and phrases (e.g. but, so, however, on the other hand, etc.), the appropriate use of cohesive devices (e.g. using pronouns for referencing) and the use of paragraphs to guide the reader, are all aspects of organisation which should be practised and developed.
- ▶ To produce a successful essay, candidates need to be familiar with a range of structures which can be used when comparing, contrasting, agreeing, disagreeing, explaining, informing and giving opinions with reasons or examples. The different ways of opening a discussion and reaching a conclusion should also be explored and practised. Exposure to a range of vocabulary used to discuss current issues and aspects of life is also very important.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ Candidates should aim to use a range of tenses, expressions and vocabulary, even if these contain some minor mistakes. It's important for candidates to show the full range of their language ability and to be ambitious in their use of language.
- ▶ Non-impeding errors, which do not affect communication, will not necessarily be penalised. These include spelling, grammar or punctuation errors. However, errors which interfere with or cause a breakdown in communication will be treated more severely.

Writing Part 2 - Choice of three tasks

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 2 consists of three questions from which candidates must choose one.
- ▶ The input for these four tasks is considerably less than in Part 1. Each writing task in Part 2 has a context, a purpose for writing and a target reader specified in no more than 70 words.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Attention to every element in the question is essential for effective task achievement and candidates should consider carefully what level of formality is appropriate to the task.
- ▶ In Part 2, candidates have a choice of tasks. Questions 2–4 are general questions, based on a range of topics, such as health and fitness, sport, music and so on. The tasks for Questions 2–4 may include any of the following task types: an article, a letter/email, a review, or a story.
- ▶ As with Part 1, candidates are expected to show that they are aware of the kind of writing required to accomplish a task, and must be able to demonstrate appropriate use of one or more of the following functions: describing, explaining, reporting, giving information, suggesting, recommending, or persuading.
- ▶ The different task types are intended to provide guidance for the candidates, so they can put together and develop their ideas on a topic, with a purpose for writing and a target reader in mind.
- ▶ The tasks in Part 2 give candidates a chance to show their range of language. In class, students should be encouraged to use a variety of grammatical structures and explore the use of new vocabulary and expressions.
- ▶ Since there is always a choice of task types in Part 2, students should avoid a particular task type if it is unsuited to their interests or experience.
- ▶ Each word in the instructions is important to the task. Students should, therefore, be advised to avoid a question if they are unsure of what is required as their answer may not be wholly relevant.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ Candidates should aim to use a range of tenses, expressions and vocabulary, even if these contain some minor mistakes. It's important for candidates to show the full range of their language ability and to be ambitious in their use of language.
- ▶ Non-impeding errors, which do not affect communication, will not necessarily be penalised. These include spelling, grammar or punctuation errors. However, errors which interfere with or cause a breakdown in communication will be treated more severely.

Assessment

Assessment scales

Tasks are marked using assessment scales that were developed with explicit reference to the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR). The scales consist of four subscales: Content, Communicative Achievement, Organisation, and Language:

- Content focuses on how well the candidate has fulfilled the task, in other words if they have done what they were asked to do.
- Communicative Achievement focuses on how appropriate the writing is for the task and whether the candidate has used the appropriate register.
- Organisation focuses on the way the candidate puts together the piece of writing, in other words if it is logical and ordered.
- Language focuses on vocabulary and grammar. This includes the range of language as well as how accurate it is.

Responses are marked on each subscale from 0 to 5.

When tasks are being marked, the length of responses and varieties of English are taken into account:

- Guidelines on length are provided for each task; responses which are too short may not have an adequate range of language and may not provide all the information that is required, while responses which are too long may contain irrelevant content and have a negative effect on the reader. These may affect candidates' marks on the relevant subscales.
- Candidates are expected to use a particular variety of English with some degree of consistency in areas such as spelling, and not, for example, switch from using a British spelling of a word to an American spelling of the same word.

The subscale Content is common to all levels:

	CONTENT
5	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • All content is relevant to the task. • Target reader is fully informed.
3	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Minor irrelevances and/or omissions may be present. • Target reader is on the whole informed.
1	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Irrelevances and misinterpretation of task may be present. • Target reader is minimally informed.
0	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Content is totally irrelevant. • Target reader is not informed.

The remaining three subscales (Communicative Achievement, Organisation, and Language) have descriptors specific to each CEFR level:

Writing mark scheme

Glossary of terms

1. General

Generally

Generally is a qualifier meaning not in every way or instance. Thus, generally appropriately refers to performance that is not as good as 'appropriately'.

Flexibility

Flexible and flexibly refer to the ability to adapt – whether language, organisational devices, or task conventions – rather than using the same form over and over, thus evidencing better control and a wider repertoire of the resource. Flexibility allows a candidate to better achieve communicative goals.

2. Content

Relevant

Relevant means related or relatable to required content points and/or task requirements.

Target reader

The target reader is the hypothetical reader set up in the task, e.g. a magazine's readership, your English teacher.

Informed

The target reader is informed if content points and/or task requirements are addressed and appropriately developed. Some content points do not require much development (e.g. state what is x) while others require it (describe, explain).

3. Communicative Achievement

Conventions of the communicative task

Conventions of the communicative task include such things as genre, format, register and function. For example, a personal letter should not be written as a formal report, should be laid out accordingly, and use the right tone for the communicative purpose.

Holding the target reader's attention

Holding the target reader's attention is used in the positive sense and refers to the quality of a text that allows a reader to derive meaning and not be distracted. It does not refer to texts that force a reader to read closely because they are difficult to follow or make sense of.

Communicative purpose

Communicative purpose refers to the communicative requirements as set out in the task, e.g. make a complaint, suggest alternatives.

Straightforward and complex ideas

Straightforward ideas are those which relate to relatively limited subject matter, usually concrete in nature, and which require simpler rhetorical devices to communicate. Complex ideas are those which are of a more abstract nature, or which cover a wider subject area, requiring more rhetorical resources to bring together and express.

4. Organisation

Linking words, cohesive devices and organisational patterns

Linking words are cohesive devices, but are separated here to refer to higher-frequency vocabulary which provides explicit linkage. They can range from basic high-frequency items (such as and, but) to basic and phrasal items (such as because, first of all, finally).

Cohesive devices refers to more sophisticated linking words and phrases (e.g. moreover, it may appear, as a result), as well as grammatical devices such as the use of reference pronouns, substitution (e.g. There are two women in the picture. The one on the right ...), ellipsis (e.g. The first car he owned was a convertible, or the second a family car), or repetition.

Organisational patterns refers to less-explicit ways of achieving connection at the between-sentence level and beyond, e.g. arranging sentences in climactic order, the use of parallelism or using a rhetorical question to set up a new paragraph.

5. Language

Vocabulary

Basic vocabulary refers to vocabulary used for survival purposes, for simple transactions, and the like.

Everyday vocabulary refers to vocabulary that comes up in common situations of a non-technical nature in the relevant domain.

Less common lexis refers to vocabulary items that appear less often in the relevant domain. These items often help to express ideas more succinctly and precisely.

Appropriacy of vocabulary

Appropriacy of vocabulary: the use of words and phrases that fit the context of the given task. For example, in I'm very sensible to noise, the word sensible is inappropriate as the word should be sensitive. Another example would be Today's big snow makes getting around the city difficult. The phrase getting around is well suited to this situation. However, big snow is inappropriate as big and snow are not used together. Heavy snow would be appropriate.

Grammatical forms

Simple grammatical forms: words, phrases, basic tenses and simple clauses.

Complex grammatical forms: longer and more complex items, e.g. noun clauses, relative and adverb clauses, subordination, passive forms, infinitives, verb patterns, modal forms and tense contrasts.

Grammatical control

Grammatical control: the ability to consistently use grammar accurately and appropriately to convey intended meaning.

Where language specifications are provided at lower levels (as in A2 Key and B1 Preliminary), candidates may have control of only the simplest exponents of the listed forms.

Range

Range: the variety of words and grammatical forms a candidate uses. At higher levels, candidates will make increasing use of a greater variety of words, fixed phrases, collocations and grammatical forms.

Overuse

Overuse refers to those cases where candidates repeatedly use the same word because they do not have the resources to use another term or phrase the same idea in another way. Some words may unavoidably appear often as a result of being the topic of the task; that is not covered by the term overuse here.

Errors and slips

Errors are systematic mistakes. Slips are mistakes that are non-systematic, i.e. the candidate has learned the vocabulary item or grammatical structure, but just happened to make a mistake in this instance. In a candidate's response, where most other examples of a lexical/grammatical point are accurate, a mistake on that point would most likely be a slip.

Impede communication

Impede communication means getting in the way of meaning. Meaning can still be determined indicates that some effort is required from the reader to determine meaning.

Question 1

Candidate A

Nowadays, more and more parents are making the controversial decision to teach their children at home rather than sending them to school. Although this approach to education has advantages, pupils who learn only at home definitely lose more opportunities.

First, children who don't go to school only know two teachers, the same people who are also their parents. Because of this, the pupils may not learn other points of view outside their family. Besides this, there is also the question if parents have the qualifications and knowledge to teach every subject. Perhaps their mother and father are experts in one or two subjects, but any school provides teachers expert in every subject.

We should remember that there is more to education than learning about topics. In addition, going to school is also a way to meet people your own age and to make friends. It is clear that children can socialise better at school, and as a result children at school will have the chance to start many lifelong relationships.

I agree that parents can have some good reasons for having home school, but overall, considering teachers and friends, it's much better for children to attend school.

Question 1

Candidate B

In my opinion studying at home is not a bad things because you are the only student and your parents, who becomes your teacher, can help you better than a "normal" teacher with more students; you don't have to wait for other students who don't do their homework or students who don't understand something.

By the way there is a bad thing: studying on your own doesn't let you meet other children and making friends becomes harder. A "normal" student stay with other people 5 or 6 hours per day, so he or she must learn how to approche with other children.

At the end this kind of school improve the relation between parents and his son because they study together so the son can see also his parents trying to learn his school subject and also the parents become important figures for the child, not just because they teach the education, but because they teach history, geography and maths, too.

Content	5	All content is relevant to the task and the target reader is fully informed. The candidate discusses the advantages of staying at home to be taught by parents (your parents, who becomes your teacher, can help you better than a "normal" teacher). The disadvantages of this method are also explored, including the difficulties of making friends if you are home schooled (making friends becomes harder). The candidate also includes their own idea, suggesting that families become closer through this type of contact (this kind of school improve the relation between parents and his son because they study together).
Communicative Achievement	3	The conventions of essay writing are evident in this response. Three distinct ideas are clearly addressed and an attempt is made to introduce the ideas in a formal way. This helps to hold the target reader's attention and communicate straightforward ideas. The topic is clearly stated in the first sentence and is referred to throughout. It is written from a general perspective and uses examples to support statements made by the writer (In my opinion studying at home is not a bad things because you are the only student).
Organisation	3	The text is generally well organised through the use of linkers and cohesive devices, although these are not always used correctly, for example, By the way; At the end, which are not appropriate in this context. There is a variety of linkers within the text (because; so; not just ... but because) and there is some use of relative clauses as well (other students who don't do their homework or students who don't understand something). The text is coherent and the main message moves forward logically.
Language	3	There is a range of everyday, relevant vocabulary, which is used appropriately within the context of the question (students; teacher; subject; homework; study) and some collocations are used correctly as well. A range of simple and some more complex grammatical forms is used, including gerund and modal verbs (you don't have to wait; can help you better than; he or she must learn how to) and comparatives. There are a number of errors with plurals and verb agreement, but these are non-impeding.

Question 2

Candidate C

Hey Sam!

What's up? Thanks for your last letter, I really hope I'll be helpful. So, my special place is defenetly my building's roof. I always go up there when I need to stay alone for a bit, take an important decision, or think carefully about something. Previously I didn't have a special place, this discover dates back to when I was 13. I was looking for a place with a great view to take a picture for my grandparents, so I decided to climb the roof beacause this building pretty high, and when I got there I was just speechless. From there you got the complete view of the entire city, beacause of the heigh there are no cars noises or other annoying noises. I brought a chair and a few pillows over there just to make it a little bit more comfortable. No one else come there, cause the access is forbidden for some reasons, and, of course, nobody knows I climb there. At first It was just a place where I could be alone but then it got special. I gave my first kiss on that roof, and we are still togheter.

Content	4	All the content is relevant. The candidate writes a review of a shop which sells clothes suitable for teenagers. There are details about the opening hours of the shop and what type of clothes it sells (strange and unusual to ordinary and trendy) as well as a description of the shop assistants. The recommendation is implicit in the description of the shop. It is possible to imagine, but no details are given. However, the reader is on the whole informed.
Communicative Achievement	4	The conventions of a review are used effectively to hold the target reader's attention. The style is appropriate for a teenage audience, and good use is made of rhetorical questions to generate interest in the opening. Descriptive and persuasive language is used to communicate straightforward ideas (you can find everything you need or you dream; If you don't believe it, came and enter in the shop).
Organisation	4	The structure of the text is well organised and coherent. There is a good introduction to the topic and the final closing sentence invites people to come and have a look themselves. Within the paragraphs, there is some use of cohesive devices and linking words, but the punctuation is also effective and appropriate for the age of the target reader (for teenegers, both male and female, from 12 to 20 years) making the sentences short but powerful. The list of clothes could be organised more effectively.
Language	3	A range of everyday vocabulary specific to the topic is used appropriately (trendy shop; all type of clothes; special discount). Within this review, there is a range of simple and some more complex grammatical forms, but little demonstration of the ability to control a range of tenses. Question 1

“Teenagers are too young to teach other people about anything”

Adults often think teenagers to be noisy, childish and violent. Some of them even don't think they have any adult senses or wise thoughts at all but, as a teenager, I think we're intelligent enough to teach other people some things, and, according to this, I'm not agree with the quotation on top of the page.

For example, lots of teenagers have better knowledge in technology, so they can teach the older generation how to deal with gadgets. In our gymnasium there are special classes for the senior people where they are taught to work on computers, and their teachers are teenagers.

Moreover, teenagers have the great knowledge in ecology, and they are really concerned on saving the planet alive. We talk a lot about environment on classes, we take part in ecology olympiades and contests for the best ecological projects and often won them, so we have a lot to tell the others about environmental problems and ways of their solving.

Besides this, teenagers can teach adults foreign languages. According to the statistics, 50% of adult generation of our country don't know any foreign languages, so we can help them to come by the new knowledge or to improve that what they have. And, of course, students from foreign countries can teach Russian students their language, and Russians can teach them Russian. It is sometimes done in linguistic centres.

To sum up I can say that teenagers have great knowledge in many fields of study, so they can also teach the people of older generation and their classmates and friends.

Content	5	All content is relevant and the target reader is fully informed. The candidate discusses the statement and disagrees with the main idea that teenagers are too young to teach others. Examples are provided which support the opinions and develop the argument. The essay is focused on the knowledge and skills that teenagers have. Teenagers can teach older people about technology and gadgets. They are more environmentally aware so can bring about change to protect the planet. The third point, the candidate's own idea, focuses on language skills that teenagers have and how they can use these to help others communicate.
Communicative Achievement	4	The essay uses the conventions of the task effectively to communicate straightforward ideas to the reader. The paragraphs are well constructed and the main points are introduced with suitably formal phrases (For example; Moreover; Besides this; According to; To sum up). The main points are supported by examples, relevant to the candidate's experience, and the register is consistent throughout. The essay does not present both sides of the argument, portraying teenagers in a positive light throughout, but this is acceptable.
Organisation	5	The text is well organised and coherent, using a variety of cohesive devices. Some organisational patterns are used to good effect; for example, the introductory paragraph presents a popular view of teenagers (noisy, childish and violent; Some of them [adults] even don't think). This is contrasted with, but, as a teenager, I think, mirroring the construction of the previous statement. The use of referencing and ellipsis increases the internal cohesion of the paragraphs (lots of teenagers have better knowledge in technology, so they can teach the older generation how to deal with gadgets).
Language	4	There is a range of technical and some environmental vocabulary used appropriately and there is some use of formal essay lexis (According to the statistics). Some errors occur when the candidate attempts less common lexis, but these are mainly due to ambition. There is a range of simple and complex grammatical forms, and these are used with a good degree of control. Errors with plurals, prepositions and articles are present, but these do not impede communication.

Candidate B

I don't think that teenagers are too young to teach other people about anything. Of course, they can't know very well some things, for example: some scientific theories, history, mathematic at all and etc, but a lot of teenagers know a lot about technology. It's normal for them to spend a lot of time with computer, different gadgets. Most of them know, how these gadgets work, so they can explain other people different moments of their working. My Granny often asks to me for a piece of advice about her mobile phone. Teenagers' knowledge about technology usually based on practice, so often they don't know about process of creating the phone, the TV, etc. They really shouldn't try to tell about things, which they don't know.

People don't need special knowledge about our world to make it better. Teenagers have a lot of time for help the environment and sometimes they tell about it people, who usually are very busy and couldn't notice the awful problems. So they can and must tell and teach people to help our planet.

In my opinion, teenagers shouldn't teach other people about things, which they know very bad, it may be only funny and of course they ought to teach other people and help them with things, which they know very good. Today all people have opportunity to learn everything, what they want. They can search information in the Internet, in books and the age doesn't matter.

Content	5	All the content is relevant and the target reader is fully informed. The essay discusses the main question of whether teenagers are too young to teach and provides an opinion on what teenagers are good at (a lot of teenagers know a lot about technology), and how practical knowledge of technology can help others (they can explain other people different moments of their working). In the second point, concerning the environment, the candidate explains that teenagers have time to learn about environmental problems and should share this knowledge. Finally, the third point presents the negative aspect that teenagers are more practical and sometimes don't have all the resources to teach a subject in depth (they can't know very well some things, for example: some scientific theories; often they don't know about process of creating the phone; shouldn't teach other people about things, which they know very bad).
Communicative Achievement	2	Straightforward ideas are communicated and the conventions of the essay task are used in generally appropriate ways. The first two points are dealt with in separate paragraphs but the third is an idea which runs throughout the essay. This point would be more successfully communicated by discussing it in a distinct paragraph. Question 2

The perfect seat, or not.

Have you ever gone to Australia? Well, my brother had. And he bought there a totally unusual object: an special chair which has a variety of facilities to enjoy.

This product is as big as a common chair, but with lots of other characteristics. It contains many boxes, places for food and drinks, a radio and a little tv too! All these make this special chair a complete unusual object. Sitting on it you feel like a kind or a queen. It is really comfortable and not as expensive as I thought it was.

The chair seemed to be perfect, but it was not. One day, an uncle of my brother and I came to our house and he sitted on it without taking much care. It was the ending of the product. It came into pieces. Apparently, the chair was not strong enough to support my uncle weight.

In our country this is an unusual object, but if you go to Australia you will find it everywhere. I recommend you to buy it, but try not to allow everybody to sit on it. The chair will not survive.

Hi Alex,

how are you? I hope you're ok. I've rethought your problem. I found out two things. First of all, if you want me to give you the best advice, I would like to have more information. Secondly, you can't make anything you really don't want to. Talk with them, and maybe you'll together find a solution. But anyway, I think that you don't want to talk with them. Well, at least I wouldn't want to. So, if you're just like me, just talk with them face-to-face and clearly say: 'no'. But if it still isn't a good solution for you, I've got one more idea. Perhaps, there is a person who plays guitar as good as you, and maybe he or she will agree to replace you for a couple of hours. Think about these ideas. I hope I helped. Write back soon, what you decided. Good luck,

your XYZ

Question 4

“THE FAIRY”

Jerry read the email and decided to go to the shopping centre immediately. The idea of getting something for free was just too tempting. He sat in the café, as the instructions in the email told him to do so, and waited. Suddenly, a mysterious woman in a pink, sparkling coat appeared in front of him. Jerry swore he saw wings hidden under it. Could that really be a fairy? The woman looked at the boy and said: “I’m going to give you a present but you have to promise me not to be mean to other people”. She handed him a package and then walked away. At this point you should know that Jerry was a bully, who was never nice to his friends at school.

The boy rushed home and opened the present. Inside he found a brand new xbox. Jerry spent hours playing video games from that day on. One time, Timmy - his neighbour asked if he could join in. “Don’t even think about it, stupid!” Jerry said. And then, the xbox disappeared. Jerry knew he hadn’t listened to the fairy. He apologised and decided not to hurt others anymore.

Communicative Achievement	5	The text uses the conventions of story-telling to communicate effectively and hold the target reader’s attention. Good use is made of features such as narrative tenses, intensifying adverbs, direct speech and descriptive language. Tips for preparing learners for the Listening test

- ✓ Students' ability to understand what they hear can improve dramatically if they are regularly exposed to audio materials: the more English they hear, the more readily they will pick out individual words, then phrases and sentences. A daily learning programme which includes a 'hearing English' component from audio or video recordings will help prepare your students for the Listening test. This should include a range of voices, accents and styles of delivery.
- ✓ Classroom discussion activities provide an invaluable source of listening practice.
- ✓ Encourage students to identify the stressed syllables and words in a listening text (the ones which carry the message) rather than trying to listen for every single syllable.
- ✓ In order to build up confidence, get your students to read a summary of what they are going to hear before they listen to the full text.
- ✓ Make students aware of how much they themselves bring to a listening task. For example, discuss with them what they can expect to hear, e.g. names and places when they turn on the news, or numbers and times if they listen to announcements.
- ✓ Try changing the focus of the tasks they do in class; sometimes ask your students to listen for specific things, sometimes for the overall gist.
- ✓ Students should practise listening to and reading the question, so that they are sure they understand what they are listening for and what they have to do.
- ✓ Remind your students that they should use the time allowed before each recording to read through all the questions carefully, so they are prepared for what they hear.
- ✓ Students should be advised that the information on the question paper is there to help them follow as they listen.
- ✓ Students should get used to answering all the questions, even if they are not sure of the correct answer – they've probably understood more than they think.
- ✓ Students shouldn't be distracted by individual words and phrases in Parts 1, 3 and 4. They should listen to the whole message.
- ✓ Students should know when to stop concentrating on a question which they are finding difficult, so that they don't miss the next question.

Completing the digital test

(digital test only)

- Candidates mark or type all their answers directly onto the computer.
- Candidates may take pens and pencils and water in a clear, see-through bottle into the exam room, but nothing else (including bags and anything electronic).
- Candidates should listen carefully to the instructions which the invigilator gives and follow the instructions on the computer screen.
- Candidates should check that they can hear the test properly. If they cannot hear the recording, they should raise their hand and inform the invigilator immediately.
- There is a timer on the screen which tells candidates how much time they have left.
- Candidates may make notes on paper during the exam, for example if they want to write down two alternative answers where they are unsure. They must leave these notes on their desk at the end of the exam.
- Make sure students have plenty of practice listening on headphones. They can do this individually through homework tasks but they should also have some practice in class as a group.

Completing the answer sheet

(paper-based test only)

- Candidates doing the paper-based test should practise transferring their answers to the answer sheet.
- All answers must go on an answer sheet.
- Candidates should write their answers on the question paper as they listen.
- Candidates then have 5 minutes at the end of the test to copy these answers onto the answer sheet.
- Candidates should use a pencil to complete the answer sheet.
- For Parts 1, 3 and 4, candidates shade a lozenge on the answer sheet to show their answer. For Part 2, candidates write their answers on the answer sheet. Remind students that they should write their answers for Part 2 clearly when they copy them onto the answer sheet, using CAPITAL LETTERS.

Advice by task

Listening Part 1

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 1 tests candidates' ability to listen for gist, detail, function, purpose, attitude, opinion, genre, agreement, etc. in a series of unrelated short texts.
- ▶ The eight questions in this part of the paper are each preceded by a context sentence which is read out on the recording. The candidates then have time to read each question before hearing the recording twice.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Play real-life snippets to your students – e.g. a teacher's announcement, a weather report – and ask them to identify the text type and topic.
- ▶ Candidates can be distracted by hearing words or phrases in the text which appear in one of the incorrect options. They need to practise spotting such mismatches, and understanding why they are wrong.
- ▶ Try using a variety of short practice texts. The questions should range from people to places, from opinions to events, from relationships to reasons. Provide the text and options, but get the students to write the questions themselves.

For example:

You overhear a student talking about a film he watched last night.

(Students suggest a question)

Options

A: a car

B: a family

C: a robbery

Text

Student: It's so difficult to get everyone to agree about what we're going to watch on TV. Is it the same in your house? Last night, for example, there were three films on. There was that one with the four sisters and their mother, during the American Civil War. Do you know the one I mean? I'd been looking forward to seeing it for ages. But the others had different ideas. Jessie was eager to see some cartoon thing about a car, but Lizzie wanted a thriller about two bank robbers. And rather than give in to each other, they both went with my choice – actually we all enjoyed it.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests candidates' ability to listen for gist, detail, function, purpose, attitude, opinion, genre, agreement, etc. in a series of unrelated short texts.

Listening Part 2

Questions 9–18
You will hear a student called Duncan Heap talking about his recent trip to Iceland to study sea birds called puffins. For each question, write the correct answer in the gap. Write a word or short phrase.

Puffins

Duncan uses the word to describe the puffin's appearance out of the water.

Duncan was surprised to learn a puffin's can help it to change direction when flying.

Duncan explains that puffins create as a place to make their nests.

Duncan agrees with people who think adult puffins make a noise like that of a .

Duncan was surprised to find out that young puffins are driven by to leave their nests.

Duncan says that puffins leaving the nest at night have always used to guide them.

In town, are the most dangerous places for young puffins to land.

Duncan was amused to see someone using an open to rescue young puffins.

Injured puffins are cared for in a in the town.

Duncan's favourite souvenir of his trip is a puffin , which he says is really cute.

Part 1 0 of 6 Part 2 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 Part 3 0 of 5

THE TASK

- ▶ The 10 questions in this part of the paper take the form of incomplete sentences. The questions follow the order of the information in the listening text. Candidates need to listen to the text and complete the sentences.
- ▶ Answers will not exceed three words in length. The word, number or phrase required will be heard on the recording and will not need to be changed in any way. Minor spelling errors are not penalised, but the candidate's intention must be clear and unambiguous. Candidates will not be asked to spell words which are above B2 First for Schools level.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Preparation for this part should include lots of exposure to simple gap-fill listening exercises.
- ▶ Students need to get into the habit of reading not only the text in front of the gap, but also the text which follows the gap, which may affect their answer. You can reassure them that the tested items come in the same order as they are heard on the recording.
- ▶ Candidates sometimes write too much, either by including unnecessary detail, or by trying to rephrase what they hear on the recording. Irrelevant detail can spoil what would otherwise have been a correct answer. Candidates should be reminded that no changes are required to the key information, that no answer will need more than three words, and that in many cases they will need only one or two words.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests candidates' ability to listen and locate specific information and stated opinion, from a single long text, and produce written answers by completing gapped sentences. Texts may be broadcasts, talks or classroom presentations.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Listening Part 3

Questions 19-23

You will hear five short extracts in which people are talking about photography. What does each speaker say about it? For each question, choose the correct answer. Use each answer only once. There are three extra answers which you do not need to use.

Answer

Part 1: 0 of 6 Part 2: 0 of 10 Part 3: 19: 20: 21: 22: 23 Part 4: 0 of 7

THE TASK

- ▶ In Part 3, candidates listen to five short texts, each with a different speaker, which are related in some way. For example, they may all be speaking about aspects of the same subject, such as travel, or about similar experiences, such as journeys. Candidates choose the option from a set of eight, that matches what each speaker says.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ It is really important for candidates to use the time they are given to read through the questions, since they need to have a clear idea of what they are listening for. Students could practise doing the exercise with the tapescript, so that they can see the kind of matching required. Other relevant exercises would be any which practise 'saying the same thing in a different way'.
- ▶ If your students are at all unsure about an answer, they should wait for the second listening before making their final decision. Making too quick a decision may mean that a candidate 'uses up' an answer that belongs to another speaker.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ In Part 3, the focus is on the skill of listening for general gist, detail, attitude, opinion etc. Candidates need to match an option to the correct speaker.

Listening Part 4

Questions 24-30

You will hear an interview with a teenager called Luke Fuller, who's talking about working as a junior reporter for his local radio station. For each question, choose the correct answer.

24 What was the aim of Luke's work at the radio station?

to encourage teenagers to take a media career to help teenagers find out about well-known people to make teenagers realise how interesting their lives are

25 Luke says the most difficult thing to learn was how to speak in the right way

write the scripts

handle the equipment

26 What problem did Luke expect to have when he reported from his school?

a negative reaction from his teachers not enough events to talk about feeling uncomfortable in the role

27 What surprised Luke when he started interviewing people?

how honest they were with him

how confident they seemed to be how well prepared they were

Part 1: 0 of 6 Part 2: 0 of 10 Part 3: 0 of 5 Part 4: 24: 25: 26: 27: 28: 29: 30

THE TASK

- ▶ The seven questions in this part of the paper take the form of 3-option multiple-choice questions. The questions follow the order of the interaction on the recording. Texts are usually interviews or discussions featuring two speakers.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ In preparing for multiple-choice questions, it can be useful for students to answer questions in their own words before they look at the options; they can then decide which option seems to correspond most closely to their own answer.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ In Part 4, the main focus is on testing the candidate's ability to listen for opinion, attitude, gist, main idea and specific information.
- ▶ Each correct answer receives 1 mark.

Audio script - sample test 1

This is the B2 First for Schools Listening test.

I'm going to give you the instructions for this test.

I'll introduce each part of the test and give you time to look at the questions.

At the start of each piece you'll hear this sound:

You'll hear each piece twice.

Remember, while you are listening, write your answers on the question paper. You'll have 5 minutes at the end of the test to copy your answers onto the separate answer sheet.

There will now be a pause. Please ask any questions now, because you must not speak during the test.

Now open your question paper and look at Part 1.

You'll hear people talking in eight different situations. For Questions 1–8, choose the best answer (A, B or C).

1: You hear a young singer talking about his childhood.

When I was a little kid, my father used to watch a lot of old movies and I sat with him and loved them too, especially the musicals. So you see, my career was inspired by him in a way and these old movies played a big part in my life. They were the reason I wanted to learn to sing, though my dad never suggested it to me. There's no musical background in my family, though my mother could sing, but she didn't have much ability really – it was just fun for her. I think my parents must have looked at me and thought: 'where did that come from?'

Now listen again.

2: You overhear a girl talking on the phone about a clothes shop.

Well, I think that new clothes store called Smart Girls is certainly a place where you can be sure of picking up a bargain or two, though most of the shops in the mall have them at the moment. The assistants are friendly and they really know about fashion, instead of just pretending to be cool! They're honest too and don't just tell you that you look great all the time. I like the music they play 'cos it sort of puts you in the mood as soon as you walk in, though I don't think it's your thing – you might prefer somewhere a bit quieter.

Now listen again.

3: You hear part of an interview with a farmer.

F: So Josh, for our teenage listeners, who live in towns and cities, tell us about what it's like living on a farm.

M: Well actually you can come along and experience it for yourself this weekend. There's going to be something called an Open Farm Day. More than 450 farms all over the country will be open to the public and you can go along and meet the animals, ride on a tractor, learn about cheese making and wool spinning, all that sort of thing. Who knows it might even persuade a few to think about farming as a career. It's not an easy life but it's a good one.

Now listen again.

4: You hear two friends talking about a school concert.

M: Hi Judy! Are you ready for the school concert tomorrow? I've been practising all week so I think it'll be OK.

F: There are a few tricky bits in that new piece of music we'll be playing. I'm getting my head round it, though. My clarinet was making a funny noise but I've got it sorted now. That could've been embarrassing.

M: I'm a bit worried about my solo part, especially with all those people watching.

F: Imagine how awful it would be to make a mistake with your mum and dad there! I'm not so bothered about strangers, though.

M: Just stay cool. If you mess up, just keep going like nothing's happened.

Now listen again.

5: You hear a news report about a football club.

Fast food is off the menu for everyone at Park Town Rangers football club! The new manager of the club has coached in many countries around the world and has picked up some ideas from his travels in Europe and Asia. He has banned the players from eating meat when they are preparing for important games. He thinks this will strengthen their physical condition and improve the team's results, a view shared by our medical experts in the studio today. Now the club have decided to go a step further and have stopped selling burgers in the stadium, a move which may not be popular with all the young fans!

Now listen again.

6: You hear two friends talking about a newspaper for teenagers.

M: I read this great newspaper the other day.

F: A newspaper? Isn't it full of dull stuff?

M: It's aimed at our age group, actually, so it presents the news in a way that's easy to understand – so it's a good way to find out what's going on in the world. It's interactive too.

F: Really?

M: Yeah, you can write reports for it and they include the best ones in the paper. Cool, huh?

F: If you like writing I suppose. Not a talent of mine.

M: So you don't bother with the news then?

F: Oh I wouldn't say that. I do follow it – just as long as it doesn't seem too much like schoolwork.

Now listen again.

7: You hear a boy telling a friend about climbing a mountain with his father.

F: How often do you go mountain climbing?

M: My dad and I go climbing together a lot, which is really cool 'cos I get plenty of time to talk with him. I remember the last mountain we climbed together, he was telling me about how you can only really enjoy the wonderful scenery once you get to the top, 'cos when you're just halfway up you're concentrating on the climb. I was really sore, and I just wanted to quit, but I carried on to the top so I could admire the beautiful view – but my legs were aching so much I couldn't appreciate it fully, or my dad's wise words.

Now listen again.

8: You hear a teacher talking about an environmental project.

Right everyone, I'm sure you'll agree it was great fun enhancing our school grounds with the butterfly garden, and I hope you all got something out of it and are more aware of your natural environment now. What you've achieved is much appreciated and the project will continue so I'd like you to keep thinking about things we can do to maintain the garden. The idea is to keep it going for future students at the school so all suggestions are welcome. I think you'll all agree it's been a great success – which I hope we can repeat in the future.

Now listen again.

That is the end of Part 1.

Now turn to Part 2.

You'll hear a student called Duncan Heap talking about his recent trip to Iceland to study sea birds called puffins. For Questions 9–18, complete the sentences with a word or short phrase.

You now have 45 seconds to look at Part 2.

Do you like sea birds? If so, you'll love puffins. They spend most of their lives at sea, but last August I was lucky enough to see them up close, when I visited the Westman Islands, in Iceland, where they build their nests.

First of all though, a few facts about puffins. They have a squat black-and-white body, short wings and a large colourful beak, which I think makes them look really funny on dry land. But puffins are built more to swim underwater than to fly or walk. When you see them swimming, it's an impressive sight. Their wings help them propel themselves through the water.

I didn't expect their feet to be used when they were flying, except perhaps just to moderate their speed, like brakes, but actually they use them to alter their direction in the air! In the water, puffins can dive deep, holding their breath for up to two minutes, to catch fish.

When spring comes, puffins can be seen on high cliffs on the Westman Islands, making their nests. It's quite a sight, I'm told. I wasn't aware of this, but puffins nest underground rather than on cliff-top ledges as I'd imagined. They dig holes, so their nests are very well protected.

Each female puffin lays just one egg in its nest each year, which the pair watches over for six weeks, day and night. While they wait, you can hear them underground making noises that might be like talking – loud growling calls, almost like laughter, which some describe as sounding like a cow, and I tend to agree! Young puffins, though, once hatched, sound more like a duck or a goose, 'peeping' for food from their parents.

I was told that, as winter beckons, their parents leave them behind and fly off to sea, but apparently it's hunger rather than loneliness that makes young puffins fly from their nests. That's something I didn't expect.

And this is what I saw when I was there. In the daytime I watched young puffins diving off the cliffs to gain enough speed for flight, as they headed out to sea. At night-time, though, which is when most of them fly off, it was a different story. The thing is, puffins instinctively use the stars for navigation, but the lights of a town can fool them and make them head in the wrong direction, so the young puffins end up landing all over the place. Some puffins land on the beaches, where they are easily rescued. Others aren't so lucky. If it's on the roads, cars aren't so much of a problem as people know to drive extra slowly at this time of year. But gardens present more of a threat. They're dark and there are lurking cats.

So I helped the local teenagers, who are allowed to stay out late, and we roamed around the town with cardboard shoe boxes, rescuing young puffins as we went. I even saw one boy putting a young puffin in an upturned umbrella, which made me laugh! They didn't seem to mind being handled and it's not unusual for a single teenager to catch ten birds in one evening. After a night spent as guests of their rescuers, with the box as a temporary bed, we carried the young birds down to the beach and threw them up high. It was a really rewarding experience to see them glide towards the sea and freedom.

Sometimes the puffins aren't ready for release, if they've been injured or whatever. In which case, they get taken to the local museum, which becomes a sort of puffin hotel for a few days each year.

You can buy all sorts of puffin souvenirs on the islands. I took some great photographs of the birds, one of which is now the screensaver on my computer – I've got a puffin mouse-mat too, that's really cute – a much better souvenir than a puffin T-shirt or baseball cap – that's the sort of thing most people buy.

Anyway, before I go onto ... [fade]

Now you'll hear Part 2 again.

That is the end of Part 2.

Now turn to Part 3.

You'll hear five extracts in which people are talking about photography. For Questions 19–23, choose from the list (A–H) what each speaker says about it. Use the letters only once. There are three extra letters which you do not need to use.

You now have 30 seconds to look at Part 3.

Speaker 1: I fell in love with photography when I was 13 and I've been doing it as a hobby ever since. I might even do it for a career but I know I've still got a lot to learn about it. I just know I really like it and it motivates me to get out there, do different things and stuff like that – you know, visit unusual locations, where I might not otherwise have gone, if I wasn't into photography. Once I've taken a load of shots,

I find it really satisfying to look at them all on screen afterwards and choose the best ones.

Speaker 2: I always photograph things that mean something to me; friends, places I've been, things I've done. I've taken some amazing shots of musicians at concerts, trying to capture the atmosphere of the music and the crowd. It's a way of freezing a moment in time with just one click – like a record, keeping the past alive for me. I love giving friends pictures of themselves in different situations. Everyone says I'm becoming a real expert, but I don't think about that. My parents also give me lots of encouragement – they're going to get me a new camera, 'cos the one I've got right now isn't exactly the latest model.

Speaker 3: I usually have an idea in my mind of what I want to see in a photo, and I'll concentrate on trying to get that picture. It might be a friend in an interesting place, or a scene from nature, whatever. I know for some people it's tricky to come up with something truly original, but I actually feel more sure of myself and what I'm doing when I'm behind the camera. I also feel a sense of calmness somehow, when I'm sitting at my laptop editing my pictures and sharing them with friends online – I just get totally absorbed in the whole process, and forget all about what's going on outside.

Speaker 4: I'm lucky 'cos I learned to use a camera when I was about five years old, so I'm pretty confident in my abilities. Obviously, there's still room for improvement, but I'm no great perfectionist. For me, it's about using the equipment to show what I think and feel, but also using my imagination to create something unique. The technology's always developing, and almost everybody's learned to use a camera of some sort these days, but I don't think people understand the power of what they can do. It's not just about getting snaps of events or new places – or else you just end up with a picture that's been taken a thousand times before.

Speaker 5: I used to enjoy just looking at photos, but then I discovered the amazing stuff you can do on computers or with a camera – I've taught myself loads – I get pleasure out of solving puzzles, and playing around, experimenting to see how it all works. It's not about trying to be creative, but more about amusing myself with what I can do. I can't say I'm some expert photographer, but I do post lots of the pictures I take on various websites for friends to look at, 'cos everybody gets something out of seeing themselves, and remembering places they went to, or things they did.

Now you'll hear Part 3 again.

That is the end of Part 3.

Now turn to Part 4.

You'll hear an interview with a teenager called Luke Fuller, who's talking about working as a junior reporter for his local radio station. For Questions 24–30, choose the best answer (A, B or C).

You now have 1 minute to look at Part 4.

Int: My guest today is Luke Fuller, who's 17 and who's just spent a month working as a junior reporter for his local radio station. It sounds fascinating. What was the purpose of what you were doing, Luke?

Luke: Well, the radio station in my town wanted to encourage teenagers to have a go at being reporters. This meant taking your microphone everywhere and talking to people about what was happening in their lives. The whole idea was to focus on ordinary teenagers and not local celebrities or anyone like that. It was about making us see that everyone has a story that's worth telling. Some of us might go on to work at a radio station, but that wasn't really the purpose.

Int: So, how did you prepare?

Luke: Well, we had a bit of training. Of course I had to familiarise myself with the equipment, but I'm quite good with technical stuff so that wasn't too much of a problem. The weird thing was having to practise being natural and relaxed. I'd never thought about how hard that would be. We were told to be spontaneous rather than write a script or anything like that. I must admit I love writing, so I did jot down some ideas anyway!

Int: How did you feel about the idea of reporting from your school?

Luke: Well, it meant I'd be the centre of attention for a few days, which I wasn't looking forward to because I'm rather shy. These reports weren't part of my school work, but my teachers seemed quite keen on the idea anyway, and one or two gave me some advice. And there was plenty of stuff going on at school. It's a lively place so there was no shortage of stuff to talk about.

Int: So what happened when you did your first interviews with people at school?

Luke: As soon as I got the microphone out, even my most talkative friends tended to go all self-conscious. Sometimes I had to begin recording a few minutes before the start of the interview just to put people at their ease. There wasn't always time to explain things to them before the interview, so sometimes one or two of them didn't feel ready. But you know, in the end people often opened up and revealed much more than I'd expected, which was great.

Int: What happens after you've recorded something? Is it edited or changed in any way?

Luke: Everything you record has to be carefully edited. Luckily I got the chance to work on this with producers at the station so it wasn't as if I'd no control over the content, although it only went out on the radio a week later, it wasn't live. Even so, kids I'd talked to at school wanted to know that anything silly or embarrassing they said wouldn't be broadcast. Unfortunately sometimes even good stuff had to be cut because time's very limited! That's a pity, but I understood the reasons for it.

Int: So, overall did you enjoy being a reporter?

Luke: Sure, it was a lot of fun. My mum says I liked it because it gave me permission to ask loads of personal questions but I think she's just joking. What was really cool about it was that I had to be a journalist, a producer and an engineer all at the same time and each role needed specific skills. I never complained about having to do everything. Yeah, it was hard work, but I didn't mind.

Int: And has it changed your attitude to radio at all?

Luke: Some of my friends think the radio is just for music. But I've never thought like that. It can make you feel like someone is talking directly to you. I hope that's how people will feel when they hear me! What I've learned is that because there are no pictures, you have to be creative and pay attention to the words you use. It made me appreciate how good radio reporters have to be at expressing themselves. That's not to say there's no place for music.

Int: Great talking to you Luke.

Now you'll hear Part 4 again.

That is the end of Part 4.

There will now be a pause of 5 minutes for you to copy your answers onto the separate answer sheet. Be sure to follow the numbering of all the questions. I'll remind you when there's 1 minute left, so that you're sure to finish in time.

You have one more minute left.

That's the end of the test.

Please stop now. Your supervisor will now collect all the question papers and answer sheets.

Audio script - sample test 2

I'm going to give you the instructions for this test.

I'll introduce each part of the test and give you time to look at the questions.

At the start of each piece you'll hear this sound:

You'll hear each piece twice.

Remember, while you're listening, write your answers on the question paper. You'll have 5 minutes at the end of the test to copy your answers onto the separate answer sheet.

There will now be a pause. Please ask any questions now, because you must not speak during the test.

Now open your question paper and look at Part 1.

You'll hear people talking in eight different situations. For Questions 1–8, choose the best answer (A, B or C).

1: You hear an art teacher talking about learning to draw cartoons.

So many young people sign up for my lessons to learn the art of drawing cartoons. Regardless of experience, everyone finds their drawing technique improves in record time with my simple step-by-step drawing lessons. Whether it's your first time learning how to draw, or whether you've got plenty of experience, you'll appreciate my method because I make it seem so straightforward – it's true! You can learn to draw cartoons without stress, though like anything in life, it's up to you if you want to take it further – be ready to practise on your own. You'll find drawing cartoons is one of the most satisfying things you can learn to do.

Now listen again.

2: You hear a boy talking to a friend about butterflies.

M: Our class is doing a butterfly survey. We're supposed to find out about them, learn their names, and write down when we see them.

F: Wow, sounds quite interesting.

M: Yeah, there are loads around in summer with all the flowers out, not just in the countryside, but even in the middle of town they aren't hard to find. I've managed to learn what most of them are called. Some of the names in the book sound quite strange but the tricky bit's relating the name to the new one that's in front of you, before it flies away – you know, matching up the colours and patterns with the picture in the book.

Now listen again.

3: You hear a boy talking about a long walk he did to raise money for charity.

I had a really exhausting weekend – went on a 10-kilometre charity walk! At least the sun was shining this time, unlike last year when it absolutely poured down apparently. That would've been really nasty! We stopped for lunch on the way so there was no rush. My feet still hurt a bit when I'd finished – but it was worth it! Then someone from the local newspaper came to ask me loads of questions – but I would've preferred not to have been the one in the spotlight. I guess I'll get my picture published soon. I'd quite happily have given that bit a miss, though, to be honest ...

Now listen again.

4: You hear a teacher talking to her class.

When you're meeting your friends and want to tell them about something you've experienced, I'm sure you'd tell them all about it in your own words, and you certainly wouldn't need to do any research. So for this class presentation, I'd say just pick the subject that you know most about. That way, for homework, you won't have to do very much, or even any background reading. You'll be surprised at how much information you have stored in your memory. All you really need to do, is make an outline to make sure you cover all the details, then practise what you're going to say using that as your guide.

Now listen again.

5: You hear two friends talking about a competition.

F: So Jason. Will you have a go at the competition for young computer games designers then?

M: It'd be really cool if I could, but I don't know if I'm really up to it.

F: But it's for 11 to 16-year-olds, so it should be your sort of thing, don't you think?

M: It's more a question of whether I've got what it takes really.

F: But you know a massive amount about computer games.

M: From the point of view of a player ... yeah, absolutely ... but as a designer? ... That's a different thing really. I'll definitely have a closer look at the competition rules though.

F: I've printed them off actually.

Now listen again.

6: You hear a teacher talking about writing a poem.

In order to write a poem of your own for the school magazine, you need to prepare yourself. I'd like your views on what might help you – it might be taking it in turns to read a classic poem in front of the class each day before we start, or it could be looking at what's out there on the internet. I suggest initially everyone choosing something from this collection here. The stuff's all by people your own age, which should help you find the freedom to explore what's important to you. Your poems should try and capture life as it happens, without worrying about what others will say.

Now listen again.

7: You hear two friends talking about a book about a footballer.

F: Did you like that book I lent you? I thought the footballer's life story was inspirational.

M: Really? I thought I knew everything about him from seeing him on TV. I had no idea he'd had such a tough childhood.

- F: Me neither. And he's really written from the heart. He's so honest about everything.
- M: It's certainly a good read – but I don't think he wrote it himself – he'll have paid somebody else to do it.
- F: Do you think so? Oh, what a let-down. I really felt like he was talking to me personally.
- M: Well I'm sure the writer would've interviewed him, so it should be what he actually said.
- F: Yes, must be.

Now listen again.

8: You hear part of a programme on the subject of animals.

Chester Zoo is celebrating the arrival of a very special creature – a rare onager foal. The male baby, who hasn't yet been named, was born to first-time mum Zarrin last week. Onagers are related to the domestic donkey and are an Asiatic wild ass from semi-desert regions in the Middle East. These creatures are now found in just two protected areas and there are thought to be only about 400 left in existence. Chester Zoo reports that the foal is doing well. Check the zoo's website to keep up to date with how the zoo's coping with the problems of dealing with the newborn, and to learn what name's been chosen for him.

Now listen again.

That is the end of Part 1.

Now turn to Part 2.

You'll hear a young man called Sam Conti telling a group of students about his job as a specialist chocolate maker. For Questions 9–18, complete the sentences with a word or short phrase.

You now have 45 seconds to look at Part 2.

Hi – my name's Sam Conti and my job is making and selling chocolate. Later on, I'm going to show you some of my chocolate – you might even get a chance to try some – but first a bit about me.

People often ask how I got into this business. Well, my parents wanted me to have a steady job, and they suggested studying something like Medicine at university, because they thought a job in that area would pay well, or even Economics, but at the time I thought Law might open more doors, so that's what I did.

But life doesn't always work out the way you plan it. After finishing my degree, I took time out and went travelling in South America, where I ended up staying over a year on a cocoa plantation. I discovered that growing high-quality cocoa beans is a process that's not at all straightforward – in fact it's a very complex one. So there's far more to the making of chocolate than first meets the eye.

I had no idea, for example, how easily the cocoa beans are affected by changes in weather and climate – much more than other fruit like apples or bananas. In fact, the beans are more like grapes really – so each year's crop is of a different quality.

When I came home, I decided to open a small shop making and selling my own chocolate – that was hard work I can tell you, because so much can go wrong with chocolate. The hardest bit is melting it in precisely the right way, but cooling it correctly isn't easy either.

To learn the trade, I set about testing all the chocolate I could find. The first thing I do is break off a piece. I want to hear 'the snap' – if it makes that noise, it means it's good.

Then I smell it just before popping it into my mouth.

I'll never forget the first chocolates I sold in the shop – I got such a buzz from it – and I've never lost that thrill. Another thing I like to do is write up my experiments. I keep a diary for this. It's the key to my success. One day I'll put it all on a database, but I haven't had time yet.

I make a range of chocolates, but what I'm aiming for is a rich and rounded flavour without bitterness. I want top quality but there must be a richness, and only a limited sweetness – and, of course, a completely new recipe so that I can be setting a new trend.

That takes time, and trying out new ideas means tasting a lot! To counter the calories, I go swimming and do a lot of running. But even then chocolates aren't far from my mind. I actually come up with most of my strangest recipes when I'm driving – once I've got an idea, I pick up samples and ingredients, and do the cooking myself.

I keep playing with flavours until I feel it's ready to try on friends. These sessions have produced some fantastic ideas, such as chilli-flavoured chocolate, which was much more successful than anyone imagined. But I've also had my fair share of disasters, like chocolate flavoured with cheese, which nobody bought. I test recipes out on my family and they're never shy about telling me what they really think.

Anyway, I've got some chocolate here for you to try, but before we do that I'd like to show you a short video clip that shows me actually making the stuff in my laboratory. Yes that's the name I use for the place where I work, because it is quite scientific what I do. But it's a workshop really, and it's located in what used to be an old sweet factory next to my house – here it is coming up on the screen now. [fade]

Now you'll hear Part 2 again.

That is the end of Part 2.

Now turn to Part 3.

You'll hear five short extracts in which teenagers are talking about their hobbies. For Questions 19–23, choose from the list (A–H) what each speaker likes most about their hobby. Use the letters only once. There are three extra letters which you do not need to use.

You now have 30 seconds to look at Part 3.

Speaker 1: I have a hobby which is super fun and superbly unique. Unicycling, you know, a one-wheeled bike, isn't as easy as it looks but you can learn how to do it. You can either try learning it from someone who already knows how to do it, which is what I did at first, or take a course. What makes unicycling so cool is that you can make up your own tricks on it, like hopping and jumping! Now I go to classes every week to make sure I learn new moves and perfect them by going over them again and again. Sometimes I take part in unicycling competitions too. They're good fun.

Speaker 2: Now everyone reckons that learning how to dance is a very interesting hobby, but at first, I wasn't so sure. Dancing can be really fun to do as well as to watch, and so is good for everyone. Mind you, some types of dancing can be quite challenging and difficult, and require a lot of dedication and precision. That's why I love my street dance classes. They're really aimed at people like me, who don't want to study every type of dance, but who'd just like to enjoy themselves and you make friends too. Maybe one day I'll be good enough to enter a dance competition, but I'm not counting on it.

Speaker 3: My dad's hobby is photography and he's passed this on to me. He says every hobby's got a practical and technical side and I mostly agree. My view is that photography's actually an art, much more than just pointing a camera and taking a photo. I think learning about photography's a great hobby for me because we have an opportunity to put our photos in competitions too, and that's what makes it really worthwhile. I know it isn't as challenging as it used to be, because now there are digital cameras and you can change things on your computer, but it's still really exciting.

Speaker 4: Singing is an art and learning how to sing can be a good hobby. There are many ways to enjoy this hobby whether you practise on your own, join a choir or just use a karaoke machine with your friends. I get a real buzz from seeing the look on their faces when it's my turn to sing. I'm not creative enough to write my own songs, but I do make sure that I pick the best ones available because it does make a difference. Sometimes I have singing classes and my teacher says I should go in for competitions, but I'm not sure how my friends would react to that idea!

Speaker 5: You'll be surprised but I would say cooking's become a really cool hobby for me and my friends these days. With all the new kinds of innovations coming in the cooking field, more and more people are getting interested in cooking delicious food for themselves as well as their family. I even liked the idea of becoming a chef once. Now I go to cookery classes where we compete with each other to see who can prepare the best meal! I do find some recipes demanding, but that's the fun of it for me, like baking cupcakes, if I keep trying again and again, I'll get better and better.

Now you'll hear Part 3 again.

That is the end of Part 3.

Now turn to Part 4.

You'll hear part of an interview with a successful young swimmer called Helen Gibson. For Questions 24–30, choose the best answer (A, B or C).

You now have 1 minute to look at Part 4.

Int: My guest today is champion swimmer Helen Gibson. Helen, welcome. Was swimming always your sport as a kid?

H: Well, I come from a pretty sporty family actually, and both my older brothers were strong swimmers, which put me off a bit at first because I never stood a chance of beating them. So, I actually took up running – that was my Dad's sport and was something I could share with him. He'd take me running along by these canals. I was always a bit frightened of falling in, so he and Mum convinced me to have some swimming coaching to build up my confidence in the water. And of course, it wasn't long before I gave up the running altogether.

Int: So why did the swimming go so well?

H: People at the club I joined said I was a natural swimmer, but I didn't believe them till I started winning regional championships, then national – then I was like, wow! I can do this. I'm pretty focused generally, things aren't worth doing if you're not passionate about them – not everybody has that drive. It's a tough sport though, and ultimately it was down to me, and of course I was fortunate to have all the facilities I needed nearby.

Int: So what was your training schedule like in those early years?

H: Very intensive really – every spare moment when I wasn't at school or doing homework was given over to training, though I never got behind with the studies actually. Fortunately I had some amazing coaches who planned fun workouts – it's more productive that way and I'm grateful to them for that. At the beginning, I took time out to hang out with friends, but as I got more successful, my routine ruled that out, but I was cool with that because swimming had become my life.

Int: How do you feel before a big race?

H: It's what I've trained for, so I try to keep calm, get ready in good time. I go and stand by the pool a couple of events before my race, with my hood up and my headphones on – music keeps me grounded. I always do the same series of stretches because they suit my body, but I don't think about the other swimmers in the event, because I can't influence what they do – it's all about my own ability.

Int: So, now you've turned professional. What's that like?

H: I love being fit and challenging myself as an athlete – now I've left school I can concentrate on that 100%. Of course, being in the public eye has its downsides – like reading stuff about yourself that's untrue – I can laugh it off, but some athletes find it hard to deal with. I do get to travel – some people would love that, but actually living out of a suitcase isn't my idea of a good time.

Int: So what's the hardest thing to deal with?

H: Getting injured isn't fun for anyone – I've been fortunate in avoiding anything too serious, but I get the usual aches and pains. You feel miserable, but you have to stay strong. Not getting results is also tough – I talk regularly with my sports psychologist if things aren't going well, so that I don't start feeling negative about things. But there's nothing worse than competing in front of a home crowd – their expectations are so high. Once I got really stressed out just thinking who was watching.

Int: Any advice for kids listening, who'd like to follow in your footsteps?

H: If I say: 'If you keep trying kids, you can be like me,' that sounds great, doesn't it? But it can't be true for everybody. I've matured a lot recently, and see things more clearly. I've given up any idea of going to college and pursuing another career for the moment, but that's my decision – I'm not saying it's the only way. In fact what I would say is, it's important to learn from your own successes and failures, because only you know what you're really capable of.

Now you'll hear Part 4 again.

That is the end of Part 4.

There will now be a pause of 5 minutes for you to copy your answers onto the separate answer sheet. Be sure to follow the numbering of all the questions. I'll remind you when there is 1 minute left, so that you're sure to finish in time.

You have one more minute left.

That's the end of the test.

Please stop now. Your supervisor will now collect all the question papers and answer sheets.

Speaking tasks

14 - 20 mins

The Speaking test contains four parts. There are always two examiners. Candidates are usually assessed in pairs, however if there is an uneven number of candidates, candidates can be assessed in groups of three. One examiner acts as both interlocutor and assessor and manages the interaction either by asking questions or providing cues for the candidates. The other acts as assessor and does not join in the conversation.

PART	TIMING	TASK TYPE AND INTERACTION	FOCUS
1	2 minutes (3 minutes for groups of three).	A conversation between the interlocutor and each candidate (spoken questions).	The focus is on general interactional and social language.
2	A 1-minute 'long turn' for each candidate, plus a 30-second response from the second candidate. The total time for Part 2 is 4 minutes (or 6 minutes for groups of three).	An individual 'long turn' for each candidate with a response from the second candidate. In turn, the candidates are given a pair of photographs to talk about.	The focus is on organising a larger unit of discourse; comparing, describing and expressing opinions.
3	A 2-minute discussion followed by a 1-minute decision-making task. The total time for Part 3 is 4 minutes (or 5 minutes for groups of three).	A two-way conversation between the candidates. The candidates are given spoken instructions with written stimuli, which are used in discussion and decision-making tasks.	The focus is on sustaining an interaction; exchanging ideas, expressing and justifying opinions, agreeing and/or disagreeing, suggesting, speculating, evaluating, reaching a decision through negotiation, etc.
4	4 minutes (6 minutes for groups of three).	A discussion on topics related to the collaborative task (spoken questions).	The focus is on expressing and justifying opinions, agreeing and/or disagreeing and speculating.

Tips for preparing learners for the Speaking paper

- ✓ Classroom activities which involve students working in pairs and small groups will give practice in skills such as initiating and responding, which are essential to success in the Speaking test.
- ✓ Make sure your students are familiar with the format of each part of the test. They should be aware of the different interaction patterns (who speaks to whom) and what stimulus will be provided by the interlocutor.
- ✓ Encourage your students to speak clearly so that they can be heard by both the interlocutor and assessor. They should be made aware that different varieties of English accents in the UK and elsewhere in the world are acceptable.
- ✓ Train your students to paraphrase when they do not know, or cannot remember, a word.
- ✓ To ensure all candidates are treated fairly, the interlocutor keeps to a scripted frame (as shown in the sample papers). However, you may remind your students that they can ask the examiner to repeat the instructions or a question.
- ✓ Encourage your students to initiate discussion and to respond to what other students have to say.

N.B. In some centres candidates from the same school are paired together. However, where candidates from a number of different schools are entered at the same centre, some candidates may find that they are paired with a candidate from another school. Students may check with the centre through which they are entering for the local procedure, if they wish.

Format

The paired format for the B2 First for Schools Speaking test (two examiners and two candidates) offers candidates the opportunity to demonstrate, in a controlled but friendly environment, their ability to use their spoken language skills effectively. The test takes 14 minutes. One examiner, the interlocutor, conducts the test and gives a global assessment of each candidate's performance. The other, the assessor, does not take any part in the interaction but focuses solely on listening to, and making an assessment of, each candidate's oral proficiency.

At the end of the Speaking test, candidates are thanked for attending. They are given no indication of the level of their achievement.

The standard format is two examiners and two candidates, but in cases where there is an uneven number of candidates, the Speaking test may be taken by three candidates together instead of two. Examiners are trained to ensure each candidate has the same opportunity to speak whether they are in pairs or in groups of three. When three candidates are tested together, the test format, test material and procedure will remain unchanged, but the timing will be longer: 20 minutes instead of 14.

The Speaking test consists of four parts, each of which is assessed. Each part of the test focuses on a different type of interaction: between the interlocutor and each candidate, between the two candidates, and among all three. The patterns of discourse vary within each part of the test.

Speaking Part 1

Part 1
2 minutes (3 minutes for groups of three)

Good morning/afternoon/evening. My name is and this is my colleague

And your names are?

Can I have your mark sheets, please?

Thank you.

- Where are you from, (Candidate A)?
- And you, (Candidate B)?

First we'd like to know something about you.

Select one or more questions from any of the following categories, as appropriate.

People you know

- Who are you most like in your family? Tell us about him/her.
- Do you have a best friend? (What do you like about him/her?)
- Who do you spend time with after school? (What do you do together?)
- Tell us about a good teacher you've had.

Things you like

- What's your favourite subject at school? (Why do you like it?)
- Do you like reading? (What do you like to read?) (Why?)
- Do you enjoy using the internet in your free time? (Why? / Why not?)
- Tell us about the things you like doing at the weekend.

Places you go to

- Do you like your school? (Why? / Why not?)
- Are there any nice places to go in (candidate's area)? (What are they?) (Why do you like them?)
- Have you been anywhere nice recently? (Where did you go?) (Why?)
- Where would you like to go for your next holiday (Why would you like to go there?)

THE TASK

- ▶ Part 1 gives candidates the opportunity to show their ability to use general social and interactional language and to give basic personal information about themselves. The questions which are asked relate to the candidates' own lives and focus on areas such as work, leisure time and future plans. Candidates are expected to respond to the interlocutor's questions, and to listen to what their partner has to say.
- ▶ The candidates are not actively invited to talk to each other in this part of the test. This short social exchange is a natural way to begin an interaction, and it gives candidates time to settle before dealing with the more specific tasks in Parts 2, 3 and 4.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ In this part of the test, students will benefit from finding opportunities to practise talking about themselves. Interlocutors will ask candidates a range of questions about their everyday lives, for example sports they enjoy, travel and holidays, work experience and so on. Encourage your students to respond promptly, with answers which are complete and spontaneous. Rehearsed speeches should be avoided as these might be inappropriate for the question asked.
- ▶ Encourage your students to look for opportunities to socialise with English speakers. In class, they could role-play social occasions in which they meet new people, e.g. parties, train journeys, starting a new job. This will give them the opportunity to practise a range of topics for this part of the test.
- ▶ Students could brainstorm possible questions from the categories above. The different groups could then answer each other's questions.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidate's ability to use social and interactional language.
- ▶ The candidates are assessed using the assessment scales with the following criteria: Grammar and Vocabulary, Discourse Management, Pronunciation, Interactive Communication.

Speaking Part 2

1 Trying to win 2 Spending time outside Interlocutor In this part of the test, I'm going to give each of you two photographs. I'd like you to talk about your photographs on your own for about a minute, and also to answer a question about your partner's photographs. (Candidate A), it's your turn first. Here are your photographs. They show people trying to win in different situations. Place Part 2 booklet, open at Task 1, in front of Candidate A. I'd like you to compare the photographs, and say what you think might be difficult for the people about trying to win in these situations. All right? Candidate A Interlocutor Thank you.	Part 2 4 minutes (6 minutes for groups of three)
--	--

What might be difficult for the people about trying to win in these situations?	1

THE TASK

- ▶ In Part 2, candidates are given the opportunity to speak for 1 minute without interruption. Each candidate is asked to compare two colour photographs, and to make a further comment about them in response to a task that is read out by the interlocutor. A prompt is given to the candidates in the form of a direct question; this is written above the photographs. Candidates are expected to point out similarities and differences between the photographs and then move on to deal with the question, answering it with reference to both photographs.
- ▶ Candidates have the opportunity to show their ability to organise their thoughts and ideas, and express themselves coherently with appropriate language. The listening candidate is also asked to comment (for about 30 seconds) after their partner's long turn. They should not speak during their partner's long turn.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Teach your students to listen carefully to the instructions and to carry them out. Remind them that they should listen carefully to the instructions which follow the words and say and read the question above the photographs. If they do not do this they may miss the focus of the task and not produce a wide enough range of language, or they may find it difficult to speak for the full minute.
- ▶ Students should be confident that they know what they have to say before they start their long turn. Remind your students that they will not lose marks if they ask the examiner to repeat the instructions.
- ▶ Students sometimes find that a minute is quite a long time to talk for. Give your students practice at talking for a minute about a given topic. Topics and visuals in B2 First for Schools coursebooks will be appropriate for this practice. Give students plenty of practice in organising an extended turn and in linking their ideas together. Time this practice so that your students get a feel for how long a minute is. Without this, they may finish the task too quickly and as a result fail to give the examiners an adequate sample of language.

- ▶ Give your students practice by cutting thematically linked pairs of photographs from magazines and giving these an additional focus as in the test. For example, you might choose photographs of two different types of holiday and ask your students to compare the photographs and say what people would enjoy about a holiday in each of the different places.
- ▶ Encourage your students to bring their own photographs to class and to speak about them.
- ▶ Candidates are not expected to give detailed descriptions of each picture. Rather, they are asked to compare the pictures and to give their reaction to them. Get your students to work in pairs or small groups and to share their ideas about what they might say, before they attempt a task.
- ▶ Students often find it useful to observe a good model answer given by a more advanced learner of English or by the teacher.
- ▶ Encourage your students to focus on useful language for this part of the test. In particular, ways of expressing similarity and difference may help, e.g. one similarity is that ...; in this picture there's ... whereas in the other there's ... Remind your students that using comparatives and linking words will produce a more extended and coherent sample of speech than simply stringing together a series of simple statements. This will help them to gain marks under the Discourse Management assessment criterion.
- ▶ Play games such as Just a Minute where candidates have to speak for 1 minute without repeating themselves.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidates' ability to produce an extended piece of discourse.
- ▶ The candidates are assessed using the assessment scales with the following criteria: Grammar and Vocabulary, Discourse Management, Pronunciation, Interactive Communication.

Speaking Part 3

21 After-school classes

Part 3 4 minutes (5 minutes for groups of three)
Part 4 4 minutes (6 minutes for groups of three)

Part 3

Interlocutor Now, I'd like you to talk about something together for about two minutes (3 minutes for groups of three).

I'd like you to imagine that a school is going to start some after-school classes to encourage their students to learn new skills. Here are some ideas for the classes and a question for you to discuss. First you have some time to look at the task.

Place Part 3 booklet, open at Task 21, in front of the candidates. Allow 15 seconds.

Now, talk to each other about why students might want to learn to do these skills.

Candidates
ⓐ 2 minutes (3 minutes for groups of three)

Interlocutor Thank you. Now you have about a minute to decide which two would be the easiest to learn to do well?

Candidates
ⓑ 1 minute (for pairs and groups of three)

Interlocutor Thank you. (Can I have the booklet, please?) Retrieve Part 3 booklet.

21

Why might students want to learn to do these skills?

speak another foreign language

draw well

play a musical instrument

play a sport

cook a meal

THE TASK

- ▶ In Part 3, candidates are asked to respond to a written stimulus which forms the basis for a discussion. They are given a discussion question, together with five written prompts designed to help candidates by providing ideas for their discussion. Candidates are expected to answer the question by exploring the different prompts. Candidates can choose which prompts to discuss – they are not expected to discuss all five prompts in the time available but should continue their discussion until asked to stop by the interlocutor. Candidates are expected to express and justify their opinions and speculate in order to have a conversation which answers the discussion question. The interlocutor will then ask candidates a second question designed to encourage them to summarise their discussion and to work towards a negotiated decision. Candidates are not penalised if they fail to reach a negotiated decision. They are assessed on their ability to hold a conversation, to turn-take appropriately, and to use the language of negotiation and collaboration while doing this.
- ▶ The task is opinion based and there is no right or wrong answer. The task gives candidates the opportunity to show their range of language and their ability to invite the opinions and ideas of their partner. Candidates are expected to share the interaction in this way and to initiate and respond appropriately.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ In this part of the test the interlocutor will give candidates a question to discuss. Encourage your students to use the written prompts as fully as possible. The interlocutor will then ask a question encouraging candidates to reach a decision by agreeing or disagreeing with each other. Tell your students not to be afraid to disagree with each other politely and that they will not lose marks if they fail to reach a decision.
- ▶ It is very important for candidates to interact with each other when they carry out the Part 3 task. All classroom discussion in pairs and small groups, therefore, provides excellent preparation.
- ▶ Remind your students to make positive contributions to move the discussion forward. They should be encouraged to respond to each other's contributions by agreeing, disagreeing and questioning each other, rather than just giving information about the task.
- ▶ In classroom activities, one student in each group could be made responsible for ensuring that every member of the group gets an equal opportunity to speak, so that the students become alerted to the importance of turn-taking.
- ▶ It may also be useful to focus on accurate production of functional language likely to be useful in this type of discussion. This may include ways of managing the discussion, e.g. Shall we start with this one?; What do you think?; Shall we move on to ...? Ways of expressing and justifying opinions, and agreeing and disagreeing (politely) are also likely to be useful.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidates' ability to engage in a discussion and to work towards a negotiated outcome of the task set.
- ▶ The candidates are assessed using the assessment scales with the following criteria: Grammar and Vocabulary, Discourse Management, Pronunciation, Interactive Communication.

Speaking Part 4

Part 4
Interlocutor Use the following questions, in order, as appropriate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Do you think classes like these would be popular with students? (Why? / Why not?) • How important do you think it is for people to try new activities? (Why?) • Why do you think some people don't like to try new things? • A lot of people enjoy doing sport after school. Do you think this is a good thing? (Why? / Why not?) • What do students enjoy doing after school in (candidate's country)? (Why?) • Do you think it's better to go out and do things after school or is it better to stay at home? (Why?) Thank you. That is the end of the test.
Select any of the following prompts, as appropriate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What do you think? • Do you agree? • And you?

THE TASK

- ▶ In Part 4, the interlocutor directs the interaction by asking questions which encourage the candidates to discuss further and broaden the topics introduced in Part 3. The questions differ from Part 1 in that they ask primarily for an evaluation rather than for information.
- ▶ This part of the test gives candidates an opportunity to show that they are capable of discussing issues in more depth than in the earlier parts of the test.

HOW TO APPROACH THE TASK

- ▶ Encourage your students to give full answers to the questions asked. They can do this by keeping useful question words in their heads, e.g. Why?, How?, When?, Where?. If, when answering a question, students also respond to related question words like these, they will give full contributions. For example, in response to a question following Part 3 on the subject of 'Holidays', students could be asked Would you like to go on a holiday like this? Students could answer yes, giving the reasons why they would like a particular holiday, when they would like to go, where they would go, and so on. The question Why? is useful for nearly all Part 4 questions and the interlocutor will often ask this question if students fail to give more than a minimal response.
- ▶ Let your students practise asking each other for their opinions on everyday situations and current events, and encourage them to give full answers to the questions asked in the way suggested above.
- ▶ Candidates may be asked individual questions, or the question may be directed to engage both candidates in the discussion. Therefore, as with Part 3, classroom discussions in pairs and small groups provide excellent preparation.
- ▶ In order to raise awareness of the types of questions asked and of effective ways of answering them, it may be helpful to give pairs of students different topics and to ask each pair to think of six discussion questions for their topic. These sets of questions could then be exchanged by the different pairs of students and discussed.
- ▶ Remind your students that there are no right answers to the questions and candidates will not be judged on their opinions, only on the language they use to express their opinions. It is quite acceptable for candidates to admit to not knowing much about a particular question, but they should be taught to expand on their views wherever possible and should be discouraged from making responses such as I don't know, I'm not sure or I haven't thought about that.

ASSESSMENT

- ▶ This part tests the candidates' ability to engage in a discussion and to work towards a negotiated outcome of the task set.
- ▶ The candidates are assessed using the assessment scales with the following criteria: Grammar and Vocabulary, Discourse Management, Pronunciation, Interactive Communication.

Please note that Sample Paper 2 contains the same set of Part 1 questions as Sample Paper 1. (In the actual exam, these questions vary).

Thank you. That is the end of the test.

Select any of the following prompts, as appropriate:

- What do you think?
- Do you agree?
- And you?

Assessment

Examiners and marking

The quality assurance of Speaking Examiners (SEs) is managed by Team Leaders (TLs). TLs ensure all examiners successfully complete examiner training and regular certification of procedure and assessment before they examine. TLs are in turn responsible to a Professional Support Leader (PSL) who is the professional representative of Cambridge Assessment English for the Speaking tests in a given country or region.

Annual examiner certification involves attendance at a face-to-face meeting to focus on and discuss assessment and procedure, followed by the marking of sample Speaking tests in an online environment. Examiners must complete standardisation of assessment for all relevant levels each year and are regularly monitored during live testing sessions.

Assessment scales

Throughout the test candidates are assessed on their own individual performance and not in relation to each other. They are awarded marks by two examiners: the assessor and the interlocutor. The assessor awards marks by applying performance descriptors from the analytical assessment scales for the following criteria:

- Grammar and Vocabulary
- Discourse Management
- Pronunciation
- Interactive Communication

The interlocutor awards a mark for global achievement using the global achievement scale.

B2	GLOBAL ACHIEVEMENT
5	Handles communication on a range of familiar topics, with very little hesitation. Uses accurate and appropriate linguistic resources to express ideas and produce extended discourse that is generally coherent.
4	Performance shares features of Bands 3 and 5.
3	Handles communication on familiar topics, despite some hesitation. Organises extended discourse but occasionally produces utterances that lack coherence, and some inaccuracies and inappropriate usage occur.
2	Performance shares features of Bands 1 and 3.
1	Handles communication in everyday situations, despite hesitation. Constructs longer utterances but is not able to use complex language except in well-rehearsed utterances.
0	Performance below Band 1.

Assessment for B2 First for Schools is based on performance across all parts of the test, and is achieved by applying the relevant descriptors in the assessment scales. The assessment scales for B2 First for Schools (shown on page 78) are extracted from the overall Speaking scales on page 79.

B2 First for Schools Speaking Examiners use a more detailed version of the following assessment scales, extracted from the overall Speaking scales on page 79:

Speaking assessment

Glossary of terms

1. General

Conveying basic meaning

Conveying basic meaning: the ability of candidates to get their message across to their listeners, despite possible inaccuracies in the structure and/or delivery of the message.

Situations and topics

Everyday situations: situations that candidates come across in their everyday lives, e.g. having a meal, asking for information, shopping, going out with friends or family, travelling to work, taking part in leisure activities. An A2 Key for Schools task that requires candidates to exchange details about a store's opening hours exemplifies an everyday situation.

Familiar topics: topics about which candidates can be expected to have some knowledge or personal experience. B2 First tasks that require candidates to talk about what people like to do on holiday, or what it is like to do different jobs, exemplify familiar topics.

Unfamiliar topics: topics which candidates would not be expected to have much personal experience of. C1 Advanced tasks that require candidates to speculate about whether people in the world today only care about themselves, or the kinds of problems that having a lot of money can cause, exemplify unfamiliar topics.

Abstract topics: topics which include ideas rather than concrete situations or events. C2 Proficiency tasks that require candidates to discuss how far the development of our civilisation has been affected by chance discoveries or events, or the impact of writing on society, exemplify abstract topics.

Utterance

Utterance: people generally write in sentences and they speak in utterances. An utterance may be as short as a word or phrase, or a longer stretch of language.

2. Grammar and Vocabulary

Appropriacy of vocabulary

Appropriacy of vocabulary: the use of words and phrases that fit the context of the given task. For example, in the utterance I'm very sensible to noise, the word sensible is inappropriate as the word should be sensitive. Another example would be Today's big snow makes getting around the city difficult. The phrase getting around is well suited to this situation. However, big snow is inappropriate as big and snow are not used together. Heavy snow would be appropriate.

Flexibility

Flexibility: the ability of candidates to adapt the language they use in order to give emphasis, to differentiate according to the context, and to eliminate ambiguity. Examples of this would be reformulating and paraphrasing ideas.

Grammatical control

Grammatical control: the ability to consistently use grammar accurately and appropriately to convey intended meaning.

Where language specifications are provided at lower levels (as in A2 Key for Schools and B1 Preliminary), candidates may have control of only the simplest exponents of the listed forms.

Attempts at control: sporadic and inconsistent use of accurate and appropriate grammatical forms. For example, the inconsistent use of one form in terms of structure or meaning; the production of one part of a complex form incorrectly; or the use of some complex forms correctly and some incorrectly.

Spoken language often involves false starts, incomplete utterances, ellipsis and reformulation. Where communication is achieved, such features are not penalised.

Grammatical forms

Simple grammatical forms: words, phrases, basic tenses and simple clauses.

Complex grammatical forms: longer and more complex utterances, e.g. noun clauses, relative and adverb clauses, subordination, passive forms, infinitives, verb patterns, modal forms and tense contrasts.

Range

Range: the variety of words and grammatical forms a candidate uses. At higher levels, candidates will make increasing use of a greater variety of words, fixed phrases, collocations and grammatical forms.

3. Discourse Management

Coherence and cohesion

Coherence and cohesion are difficult to separate in discourse. Broadly speaking, coherence refers to a clear and logical stretch of speech which can be easily followed by a listener. Cohesion refers to a stretch of speech which is unified and structurally organised.

Coherence and cohesion can be achieved in a variety of ways, including with the use of cohesive devices, related vocabulary, grammar and discourse markers.

Cohesive devices: words or phrases which indicate relationships between utterances, e.g. addition (and, in addition, moreover); consequence (so, therefore, as a result); order of information (first, second, next, finally).

At higher levels, candidates should be able to provide cohesion not just with basic cohesive devices (e.g. and, but, or, then, finally) but also with more sophisticated devices (e.g. therefore, moreover, as a result, in addition, however, on the other hand).

Related vocabulary: the use of several items from the same lexical set, e.g. train, station, platform, carriage; or study, learn, revise.

Grammatical devices: essentially the use of reference pronouns (e.g. it, this, one) and articles (e.g. There are two women in the picture. The one on the right ...).

Discourse markers: words or phrases which are primarily used in spoken language to add meaning to the interaction, e.g. you know, you see, actually, basically, I mean, well, anyway, like.

Extent/extended stretches of language

Extent/extended stretches of language: the amount of language produced by a candidate which should be appropriate to the task. Long-turn tasks require longer stretches of language, whereas tasks which involve discussion or answering questions could require shorter and extended responses.

Relevance

Relevance: a contribution that is related to the task and not about something completely different.

Repetition

Repetition: repeating the same idea instead of introducing new ideas to develop the topic.

4. Pronunciation

Intelligible

Intelligible: a contribution which can generally be understood by a non-EFL/ESOL specialist, even if the speaker has a strong or unfamiliar accent.

Phonological features

Phonological features include the pronunciation of individual sounds, word and sentence stress and intonation.

Individual sounds are:

pronounced vowels, e.g. the /æ/ in cat or the /e/ in bed
 diphthongs, when two vowels are rolled together to produce one sound, e.g. the /əʊ/ in host or the /eɪ/ in hate consonants, e.g. the /k/ in cut or the /f/ in fish.

Stress: the emphasis laid on a syllable or word. Words of two or more syllables have one syllable which stands out from the rest because it is pronounced more loudly and clearly, and is longer than the others, e.g. imPORTant. Word stress can also distinguish between words, e.g. proTEST vs PROtest. In sentences, stress can be used to indicate important meaning, e.g. WHY is that one important? versus Why is THAT one important?

Intonation: the way the voice rises and falls, e.g. to convey the speaker's mood, to support meaning or to indicate new information.

5. Interactive Communication

Development of the interaction

Development of the interaction: actively developing the conversation, e.g. by saying more than the minimum in response to the written or visual stimulus or to something the other candidate/interlocutor has said; or by proactively involving the other candidate with a suggestion or question about further developing the topic (e.g. What about bringing a camera for the holiday? or Why's that?).

Initiating and responding

Initiating: starting a new turn by introducing a new idea or a new development of the current topic.

Responding: replying or reacting to what the other candidate or the interlocutor has said.

Prompting and supporting

Prompting: instances when the interlocutor repeats, or uses a backup prompt or gesture in order to get the candidate to respond or make a further contribution.

Supporting: instances when one candidate helps another candidate, e.g. by providing a word they are looking for during a discussion activity, or helping them develop an idea.

Turn and simple exchange

Turn: everything a person says before someone else speaks.

Simple exchange: a brief interaction which typically involves two turns in the form of an initiation and a response, e.g. question–answer, suggestion–agreement.
